Introduction

What is Active Grammar?

Active Grammar is a grammar reference and practice series for secondary students and university students. It is divided into three levels, corresponding to the levels of The Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEF). Level 1 corresponds to A1–A2, Level 2 to B1–B2, and Level 3 to C1–C2. The books give comprehensive coverage of grammar at each level, while also covering reading, composition and discussion. The books are suitable for students who are preparing for Cambridge ESOL exams.

How are the books organised?

Each unit includes

- a short presentation text which shows the grammar in context and provides authentic content in areas such as geography, history, social studies and science.
- easy-to-understand grammar explanations with plenty of examples.
- Tip boxes which highlight common errors or other interesting facts about the grammar.
- graded grammar practice exercises, many of which are in the style of Cambridge ESOL exams, aimed at building students' confidence.
- a My Turn activity, where students can actively apply the grammar to their own experiences, opinions and personal preferences.
- a My Test section which allows students to check their understanding of key points.

Also included in the book

- regular Review units which provide contrastive practice of previous units.
- an Answer key.
- the Appendices, which include a Glossary with definitions for all highlighted words in the units.

The CD-ROM includes

- extra activities for all the grammar covered in the book.
- printable progress tests.

How do I use the book?

You can work through the book unit by unit from Unit 1. Alternatively, you can use any unit or group of units separately if you want to focus on a particular area of grammar.

The book can be used for self-study, or in the classroom. For teachers, a comprehensive online teacher's guide gives practical tips on how to use the material in class.

Present simple and present continuous

I'm holding my breath.

Friday night

It's midnight and I'm holding my breath.
I feel so scared that I can't move.
 There it is again – a noise downstairs. I think there's someone in the house.
 'Don't be silly!' I say to myself. (I'm always lying awake at night and listening to noises. Usually I find out it's the fridge or someone next door or ... just nothing.)
I'm staying at my friend's house. Round here all the houses have got two floors. My friend doesn't live in a safe part of town and sometimes burglars come in through the downstairs windows.
 I've prepared for this moment. This is what you do:
 1 You lock the door as quietly as you can. 2 You phone the police on your mobile. 3 You talk to the police very loudly.
 There's the noise again ... and it's getting closer.
 I don't want to do this. I get slowly out of bed. But then I stop. Two round eyes are looking at me.
 I scream.
 The neighbour's cat runs back the way it came. How did it get in? Probably through the downstairs window.
 But that means the downstairs window is open ...

- 1 Where is the writer of the story?
- 2 What is making the noise?

Answers: 1 The writer is at his or her friend's house. The writer is in bed upstairs.
 2 The neighbour's cat

Present simple and present continuous

Present simple

- 1 Add an -s for third person forms in present simple statements.
All other forms stay the same.

I / you / we / they run.
He / she / it runs.

- 2 Make negative forms of regular verbs with don't and doesn't.

I don't want to do this.
My friend doesn't live in a safe part of town.
 NOT ... doesn't lives ...

- 3 Use the present simple for things that are always or usually true.

He doesn't live in a safe part of town.

- 4 Use the present simple for regular or repeated events and habits.

I visit my friend every month.

- 5 We often use the present simple with adverbs of frequency, e.g. always, never, usually.
Usually I find out it's the fridge or someone next door ... or just nothing.
- 6 We often use the present simple to give instructions or directions.
1 You lock the door as quietly as you can.
2 You phone the police on your mobile.
- 7 We often use the present simple to tell a story, or to describe a series of events as they happen.
I get slowly out of bed. But then I stop.
- 8 We often use the present simple for a review (of a book or a film, for example).
The film tells the story of a boy who lives in the poorest part of the city. It has an unexpected ending.
- 12 Use the present continuous with always, constantly or forever to criticise.
I'm always hearing noises.
- 13 Use the present continuous to talk about situations which are gradually changing.
The noise is getting louder.
- 14 We often use the present continuous to describe the background to a story. We use the present simple to describe the events.
It's midnight and I'm holding my breath. 'Don't be silly!' I say to myself.
- 15 We don't usually use the present continuous with state verbs (which describe states, not actions), e.g. want, sound, believe, mean, promise.
I don't want to do this. That means the downstairs window is open.

TIP

Have got means the same as have.
Have got is more common in informal and British English.
I've got three brothers. = I have three brothers.
I haven't got any sisters. = I don't have any sisters.
A: Have you got any children?
B: Yes, I have. / No, I haven't.
= A: Do you have any children? B: Yes, I do. / No, I don't.

Present continuous

- 9 Make present continuous sentences with am / is / are + verb + -ing.
I'm always lying awake.
It's getting closer.
Two round eyes are looking at me.
- 10 Use the present continuous to describe an activity in progress now or around now.
Two round eyes are looking at me.
I'm studying two languages: English and Spanish.
- 11 Use the present continuous to talk about unfinished or temporary actions.
I'm staying at my friend's.

TIP

Note the difference:
He lives in a beautiful flat. (The speaker doesn't think this situation will change soon.)
He's living in the north of the city at the moment. (The speaker thinks this is a temporary situation.)

TIP

We often use the present simple in formal letters and emails.

I write to inform you that ...
I look forward to meeting you.

We often use the present continuous in more informal letters and emails.

I'm writing to let you know that ...
I'm looking forward to seeing you.

- See Unit 8 for the present simple and present continuous with future meaning.

Practice

A Underline the correct option.

It's the middle of the afternoon. In a quiet neighbourhood a burglar ¹*tries / is trying* to break into a house. He ²*creeps / is creeping* round the house when he ³*hears / is hearing* a voice. 'Spider-Man ⁴*watches / is watching* you!' The burglar ⁵*turns / is turning* round quickly but he ⁶*doesn't see / isn't seeing* anything. So he ⁷*starts / is starting* creeping across the garden again. 'Spider-Man ⁸*watches / is watching* you!' The burglar ⁹*hears / is hearing* the voice again and this time he ¹⁰*sees / is seeing* a parrot. The parrot ¹¹*sits / is sitting* by the side of the house. ¹²*'Do you talk / Are you talking* to me?' ¹³*asks / is asking* the burglar. 'Yes,' ¹⁴*says / is saying* the parrot. 'How do you do? I'm Batman.' 'That's a silly name,' ¹⁵*laughs / is laughing* the burglar. 'Why ¹⁶*does your owner call / is your owner calling* you that?' 'I have no idea,' ¹⁷*replies / is replying* the parrot, 'and ¹⁸*I don't know / I'm not knowing* why the rottweiler's name is Spider-Man.' 'I ¹⁹*don't want / am not wanting* to find out!' the burglar ²⁰*says / is saying*. And he ²¹*runs / is running* away!

Past simple and past continuous

He was driving on a dark night.

Casey Jones (1863–1900) was an American railway driver. He became a hero when he died because he saved the lives of many passengers in a terrible accident.

On 30 April 1900 Casey was driving his train back to the station during a dark and wet night. He was with another driver, his friend Webb. The train was going fast because Casey wanted to get back quickly but this wasn't the problem. There was another train on the same railway. Casey and Webb didn't know about this train.

As Casey was coming around a bend, he saw the other train. Casey realised the danger. 'Jump!' he shouted to his friend. Webb jumped from the train while Casey was trying to stop. Webb fell 100 metres but he didn't die. While he was falling, he heard Casey. Casey was shouting, 'Help!' The train was going fast, so it couldn't stop quickly. Casey slowed the train down but it still crashed. Casey was killed but the passengers didn't die.

Casey became very famous after this and his friend wrote a very popular song, The Ballad of Casey Jones, about him.

Underline the correct options:

- Casey is a hero because he saved many lives / wrote a song.
- Webb was a driver / passenger.

Answers: 1 saved many lives 2 driver

Past simple and past continuous

Past simple

- Add -ed to make the past simple (regular) for all persons. Use did not with the infinitive without to to make the negative and use did to make a question.

	statement ✓	negative ✗
I / You / He / She / It / We / They	started.	did not (didn't) start.

question ?	short answer ✓✗
Did I / you / he / she / it / we / they start?	Yes, (I) did. No, (I) did not (didn't).

- 2 Many common verbs have irregular forms for past simple statements, e.g. go → went, see → saw, be → was / were.

Casey went to the station.

We saw the crash.

- ▶ See page 203 for a list of irregular verbs.

- 3 Use the past simple for past actions, states and facts.

Casey lived in the USA.

Millions of immigrants moved to the USA in the nineteenth century.

- 4 We usually use the past simple for repeated or usual actions or situations.

While I was on the train, Mike called twice.

Casey walked to work every day.

Past continuous

- 5 Make the past continuous using the verb was / were + verb + -ing.

	statement ✓	negative ✗
I / You / We / They	were working.	were not (weren't) working.
He / She / It	was working.	was not (wasn't) working.

Make questions and short answers as follows:

question ?	short answer ✓ ✗
Were you / we / they working?	Yes, (we) were. No, (we) weren't.
Was I / he / she / it working?	Yes, (he) was. No, (he) wasn't.

- 6 Use the past continuous (e.g. was walking, were living, etc.) to talk about events which were in progress at a particular time in the past.

On 30 April Casey was driving his train back to the station.

What was he doing the day before?

- 7 Use the past continuous for a description of simultaneous ongoing situations.

It was raining, so we weren't driving fast.

What were the passengers doing while this was happening?

Past simple and past continuous

- 8 We can use the past simple with the past continuous in the same sentence. The past simple is a shorter action / event that happens in the middle of, or interrupts, a longer past continuous action / event.

My dad phoned while I was having a shower.

- 9 Use the past continuous to give the reason for a past event, or to set the background to a story – to talk about what was going on when an event happened.

The train was going fast, so it couldn't stop quickly.

I was listening to the radio when I heard the news.

When, while and as

- 10 Use when, while or as to link past simple and past continuous verbs. Use when before the past simple or the past continuous verb. Use while before the past continuous verb.

While he was falling, he heard Casey.

I didn't say anything when / while the police were asking questions.

- 11 Use when to join past simple events that are consecutive.

The train stopped when it arrived at the station.

When the phone rang, Jack answered it.

- 12 We usually use when with states, e.g. ages.

They left America when they were children.

Casey died when he was 37.

- 13 We usually use as to describe two short events that happen simultaneously, or two events that change together.

As the train crashed, everyone screamed.

As the train went faster, Casey worked harder.

TIP

Use during to say when something happened.

Use for to say how long something went on.

The train crashed during the night.

He was a train driver for 10 years.

I was working during my holidays and didn't see her for three weeks.

Practice

A Write the past simple forms of these verbs.

- | | |
|------------------------|-------------------|
| 1 drive – drove | 2 do – |
| 3 have – | 4 get – |
| 5 open – | 6 eat – |
| 7 swim – | 8 shout – |
| 9 fall – | 10 try – |
| 11 know – | 12 become – |

Used to and would

They used to pay soldiers in salt.

Before there was money, people used to exchange things. They would give each other things they both wanted; for example, you'd give a sheep and get a knife.

Traders used to prefer metals, like gold and silver, because, unlike a sheep, they would last a long time. The Egyptians used to exchange gold bars.

The Lydians, people who used to live in part of modern Turkey, invented coins about 2,600 years ago. The Lydians would put a picture on their coins to show where the money came from.

The Romans used to pay their soldiers partly in salt. Salt used to be very valuable and soldiers would sell it for other things. The word 'salary' means 'salt money' and the expression 'worth your salt' (= good at your job) comes from this.

The Chinese made the first paper money about 1,500 years ago. In some parts of China they didn't have enough metal for coins so they would print paper money for the same value. However, paper money didn't use to be very common in Europe until about 1700.

True or False?

- 1 The Lydians lived in Egypt.
- 2 Coins came before paper money.

Answers: 1 False 2 True

Used to and would

Used to

- 1 Used to is followed by an infinitive without to.
Used to has no present or continuous forms.
Salt used to be very valuable.
- 2 Make used to questions with Did + noun / pronoun + used to ...?
Did the Egyptians used to buy gold?
Did you used to eat a lot of sweets when you were young?
- 3 Make the negative of used to with did not (didn't) use to or never used to.
Paper money didn't use to be very common.
We never used to spend much.

TIP

The negative didn't used to is also common.
Used not to is also possible in formal language.

- 4 Used to is for habits and activities which are no longer happening today. Used to often contrasts the past and the present. Used to usually comes without a time expression.
The Romans used to pay soldiers in salt.
I used to work in a bank but now I'm a teacher.

Would

- 5 Would is followed by an infinitive without to, and the negative is would not. The affirmative short form is 'd and the negative short form is wouldn't.
For example, you'd give a sheep and get a knife.
They wouldn't work on Sundays.
- 6 Would is similar in meaning to used to but it is less common. In a text, would usually follows used to or a past time expression.
That summer we would go swimming every morning.
Jack used to love books. He would read two books every week.

TIP

In this meaning, would is very rarely used in questions.

Used to vs. would

- 7 Used to, not would, is for past states.
The Lydians used to live in Turkey. NOT ...would live...
My sister used to know him. NOT ...would know...

Used to and would vs. the past simple

- 8 We can use the past simple instead of used to and would.
We used to watch / watched too much TV.
The soldiers would sell / sold the salt for other things.
- 9 Use the past simple, not used to or would, when talking about single events, how long they took or how many times they happened.
I went to the market yesterday.
NOT I used to go to the market yesterday.
We didn't eat for two days.
NOT We didn't use to eat for two days.
Jane visited me in hospital twice.
NOT Jane used to visit me in hospital twice.

TIP

Be / get used to means to know something so that it is not strange or new. A noun or verb + -ing can come after be / get used to.
After three weeks, I was used to my new home.
It's difficult to get used to working at night.

- See Units 14, 35, 36 and 37 for other uses of would.

C Change the past simple into would in this text, if possible.

I remember my childhood very well. Every summer, we ~~went~~^{would go} to the seaside. I was ten years old and I loved the sea. I played on the beach and my father bought me an ice cream. Sometimes we went on a boat. Some people swam around the boat, others fished, others watched. One trip my sister fell into the sea! Luckily, she was a good swimmer. That was very funny. In the evenings, we walked around the town. My mother told us stories about all the places and we listened very carefully. At night I fell asleep feeling very happy. A wonderful time!

D Underline the correct option. Sometimes more than one option is possible.

- My best friend used to have / would have a mountain bike.
- That summer we used to spend / would spend all day on the beach.
- Yesterday I would phone / phoned Jill.

Many famous people have studied at Harvard.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Harvard University is the oldest university in the USA. The university started in 1636 and it got its name two years later when John Harvard died and gave a library to the university. Since then, the university has grown and Harvard has become one of the most famous universities in the world. Now people all over the world have heard about Harvard. Many famous people have studied at Harvard, including the poet T.S. Eliot, the president Barack Obama and the actress Natalie Portman. Many Harvard students have won Nobel Prizes.

Education at Harvard has changed a lot over its history. Charles Eliot, president of Harvard from 1869–1909, made the biggest changes. For example, before Eliot was president, students didn't take entrance exams. Today, thousands of students want to study at Harvard but only about 10% of them pass the entrance exams.

Harvard is not all about education. Sport and culture are also very important. Twenty-first-century students work hard and play hard.

- 1 What year did John Harvard die?
- 2 Who was Charles Eliot?

Answers: 1 1638 2 President of Harvard from 1869–1909

Present perfect, past simple, present simple

Present perfect

- 1 Make the present perfect using the verb have + past participle.

	statement ✓	negative ✗
I / You / We / They	have ('ve) visited	have not (haven't / 've not) visited
He / She / It	has ('s) visited	has not (hasn't / 's not) visited

Make questions and short answers as follows:

question ?	short answer ✓ ✗
Have I / you / we / they visited ...?	Yes, (I) have. No, (I) haven't.
Has he / she / it visited ...?	Yes, (he) has. No, (he) hasn't.

- 2 Use the present perfect to talk about recent events or a past event which the speaker feels is connected with the present.

Kurt is very happy that he has graduated.

A: Have they arrived? B: Yes, they're here.

Past simple

- 3 Use the past simple to talk about a finished action in the past.

John Harvard died.

Matt Damon went to Harvard.

Present simple

- 4 Use the present simple to talk about present facts or events.

I study Mathematics at Harvard.

There are 15 students in my class.

Present perfect vs. present simple

- 5 Use the present perfect, not the present simple, for an event or a situation which began in the past and continues in the present, when we want to say how much time it has been going on.

Harvard has been a university since 1636.

NOT ... was a university ...

Natalie, how long have you worked in the movie business?

NOT ... did you work ...

It hasn't rained for months now. NOT ... didn't rain ...

- 6 Go has two past participles: gone and been. There is a difference in meaning.

My brother has gone to America.

(= My brother is travelling to America or is there now.)

My brother has been to America.

(= My brother went to America but he is back home now.)

Present perfect vs. past simple

- 7 Use the present perfect when we do not know exactly when the past event took place, or it is not important. Use the past simple to give details later.

Have you seen my book?

Bill has come back from university. He arrived on Tuesday.

President Obama has arrived in India. He met Indian business men and visited ...

- 8 With the present perfect, we use words which mean 'at a time up to now', e.g. already, ever, for, lately, never, recently, since, yet. With the past, we use words and expressions which mean a finished period of time, e.g. ago, in 2003, last week, on my birthday, then, when, yesterday.

Teresa has already graduated.

I've never been to America.

The university started in 1636.

Last Saturday we had a party.

- 9 With today and this + time word, e.g. this afternoon, this year, we can use the present perfect or the past simple. Use the present perfect to mean the complete time period up to now. Use the past simple to mean a finished part of that time period.

I've phoned John this morning.

(It is still the morning.)

I phoned John this morning.

(It is now the afternoon.)

TIP

In conversation, we can often use either the past simple or the present perfect.

Present perfect simple and present perfect continuous

She's been living here for 30 years.

Villageradio))))

We went to Saffron Walden, a beautiful English village, and asked people some questions about life there.

'How long have you been living in Saffron Walden, Paula?'
 'Oh, only three months. My mum and dad moved here from London. They've always liked the country and they wanted a quieter life. It's difficult for my dad as he still works in London and he's been travelling from here to London every day. I prefer London but I've already made some nice friends here. They've been helping me a lot, so it hasn't been too bad. Look, why don't you speak to Mrs Black over there by the bus stop; she's been living here for 30 years.'

'Mrs Black? Can I ask you a few questions?'

'Sure, I've been waiting for a bus for 20 minutes, so I've got some time.'

'Has life here changed much in the last 30 years?'

'Yes and no. The buses are still always late. They've been promising to improve the bus service for years, but nothing has happened. Seriously, the village centre is still the same. We've kept all the beautiful houses and historical places, and the maze of course. The village has been growing as young people like Paula and her family have moved here from towns. One thing I don't like Sorry, I need to go, my bus has come!'

Next we visited the village of Inkpen.

Saffron Walden maze

- 1 Who goes to London very often?
 a Paula b Paula's dad c Mrs Black
- 2 What do you do in a maze?
 a walk around b have a picnic c wait for a bus

Answers: 1b 2a

Present perfect simple and present perfect continuous

Present perfect simple

- 1 Use the present perfect simple to talk about events and situations which started in the past and continue into the present, or have only just stopped.

I have moved to Saffron Walden and I'm very happy there now.

► See Unit 4 for how to form the present perfect.

Present perfect continuous

2 Make the present perfect continuous using have + been + verb + -ing.

	statement ✓	negative ✗
I / You / We / They	have ('ve) been working.	have not (haven't / 've not) been working.
He / She / It	has ('s) been working.	has not (hasn't / 's not) been working.

Make questions and short answers as follows:

question ?	short answer ✓✗
Have I / you / we / they been working?	Yes, (I) have. No, (I) haven't.
Has he / she / it been working?	Yes, (he) has. No, (he) hasn't.

3 We use the present perfect continuous (or sometimes the present perfect simple) for a situation or activity that is still going on or has only just ended, when we want to talk about how long something has been going on. We do not use the present tense in these examples.

She's been living in the village for 30 years.

NOT ...lives in the village...

I've been waiting for a bus for 20 minutes.

NOT ...am waiting...

Professor X, who is leaving us today, has taught here for many years. NOT ...teaches here...

Use for with a period of time, e.g. for an hour, for a few days, for ages (= for a long time); use since to emphasise when a situation began, e.g. since Monday, since last year, since she got married.

I've been standing here for half an hour / since 12 o'clock.

4 We usually use the present perfect continuous for changes.

The village has been growing.

Their music has been getting more popular.

Present perfect simple vs. present perfect continuous

5 We usually use the present perfect simple for longer permanent situations and the present perfect continuous for shorter temporary situations.

People have spoken English for 1,500 years.

Victor has been studying English for three months.

6 We usually use the present perfect simple for facts or events and the present perfect continuous for activities.

Mrs Black has gone home.

She has been working and is very tired.

TIP

We can use still ... not with the present perfect simple when we want to emphasise that a past situation is not finished. Still goes before have.

The bus still hasn't come!

7 Use the present perfect simple, not the present perfect continuous, with state verbs, e.g. understand, have and like.

Saffron Walden has had a church for 1,000 years.

NOT Saffron Walden has been having...

8 Use the present perfect simple, not the present perfect continuous, to talk about how often you have done something.

I've done the washing twice.

NOT I've been doing...

9 Do not use the present perfect simple and present perfect continuous with past time expressions. Use the past simple and past continuous with past time expressions.

We visited Saffron Walden last summer.

NOT We've visited...

It was raining last night.

NOT It's been raining...

TIP

Often there is no difference in meaning between the present perfect and the present perfect continuous, but the present perfect is more common.

I have lived here for 20 years = I have been living here for 20 years.

Practice

A Make present perfect continuous sentences from the words.

- been / it / day / raining / has / all
It has been raining all day.
- have / looking / for / I / everywhere / been / you
- been / well / hasn't / Mike / feeling
- giving / her / been / we / have / advice
- eating / my / has / been / chocolate / who
- my / been / has / me / helping / dad
- haven't / the / working / phones / been
- doing / crossword / been / have / you / that

B Underline the correct option.

- It has been / has been being a difficult day.
- Trevor, have you listened / been listening to me?
- Pete hasn't come / hasn't been coming back from London.
- She has sung / has been singing for two hours, so she needs a rest.
- Has Sam taken / been taking my pen again?
- Louise has read / has been reading the same book for two months.
- The match has finished / has been finishing and Liverpool are champions!
- I have thought / have been thinking about you all day.
- He hasn't understood / hasn't been understanding what to do.
- He can't drive home because he has drunk / has been drinking.

C Write these time expressions under for or since.

ages a long time February it happened
I got home midnight my whole life she was two years old the rest of the year two months Christmas

for	since
ages

D Write present perfect continuous sentences to match the pictures.

- She's been running.*

Past perfect simple and past perfect continuous

Scientists had been studying a hurricane.

On 28 August 2005, the US government told everyone in New Orleans to leave the city. Scientists had been studying a hurricane in the Gulf of Mexico. It was moving towards the city.

The US government had been preparing for a hurricane in New Orleans for a number of years and had already decided on a plan to get people out. People were able to leave the city quickly by using both sides of certain roads.

When Hurricane Katrina hit the city on 29 August, many people had already left. However, the government had not been ready for the large number of people who could not, or did not, leave. More than 1,800 people died and tens of thousands of people lost their homes when winds of 125 miles per hour hit the city. It was one of the worst disasters in the history of the United States.

After the hurricane, around 80% of New Orleans was under water.

- 1 How strong was Hurricane Katrina?
- 2 What damage did it cause?

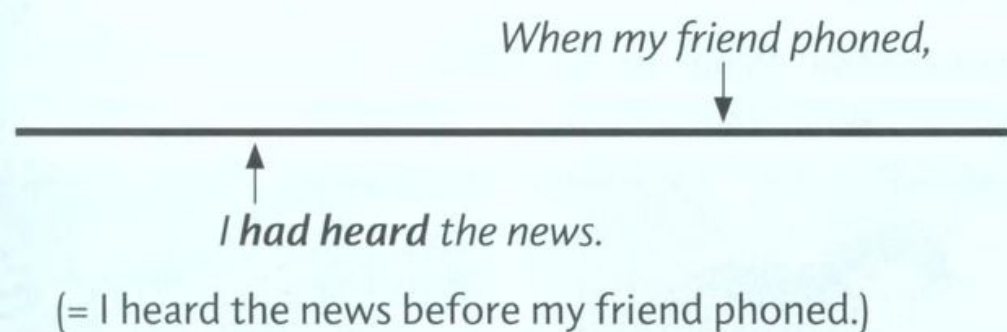

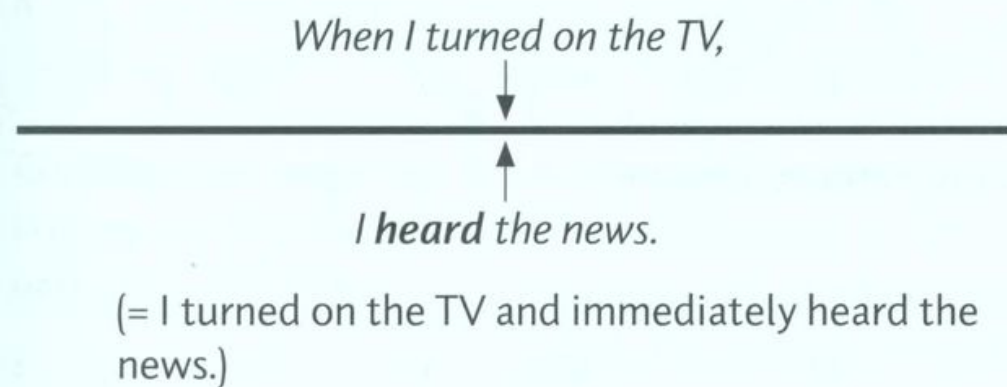

Answers: 1 Hurricane Katrina had winds of 125 miles per hour.
2 More than 1,800 people died and tens of thousands of people lost their homes.

Past perfect simple and past perfect continuous

Past perfect simple

- 1 Make the past perfect simple using had + past participle.
They had already left / 'd already left.
The government had not been / hadn't been ready.
What had they decided?
- 2 Use the past perfect to talk about an event which happened before another event in the past.
When Hurricane Katrina hit the city on 29 August, many people had already left.

Note the difference:

- 3 Use the past perfect to talk about things that did not happen as you expected or wished.
I had intended to visit New Orleans that summer.
 - 4 The past perfect is common in indirect speech.
I told her what I had seen.
- See Unit 38 on indirect statements.

- 5 In sentences with the time expressions after, as soon as, by the time or when, we can often use either the past perfect or the past simple.

As soon as I (had) sat down, somebody knocked on the door.

It was half past ten by the time they (had) finished.

Past perfect continuous

- 6 Make the past perfect continuous using had been + -ing.
They had been studying / 'd been studying a hurricane.
I had not been listening / hadn't been listening.
How long had they been studying it?

TIP

Like the present perfect, we often use the past perfect with the adverbs ever, never, just and already.

The US government had already decided on a plan to get people out.

- 7 The past perfect continuous is not as common as the past perfect simple. Use the past perfect continuous to describe an activity or situation in the past which began before something else happened and continued during it or finished just before. Use the past perfect simple to talk about completed events or past states. Sometimes both forms are acceptable.

The US government had been preparing for a hurricane in New Orleans for a number of years.

(= These preparations continued up until the hurricane.)

The government had decided on an evacuation plan.

(= The decision and the plan were complete.)

TIP

The past perfect is not used on its own to talk about the past. We use the past perfect only in relation to another event or time in the past.

✗ She had got up at ten to seven.

✓ She left the house at seven o'clock. She had got up at ten to seven.

One Monday evening in September, Grant put up his tent on a campsite on the edge of a mountain lake. The next morning Grant started a 15-mile walk through the mountains. A ranger had driven him to the start of the walk.

That evening a snowstorm started after he had put up his tent for the night. In the morning there was snow on the ground, but it was sunny and clear, so Grant continued his walk. Grant could not see the path very well and he slipped and fell down some steep rocks. He landed on a flat rock, but he could not move. He had lost his glasses and broken his arm.

On Saturday morning Grant's friend, Ed, waited for him at the end of the trail. When he did not arrive, Ed phoned the rescue team. But Grant was lucky, a helicopter had already found him.

D Underline the correct option.

What will the future be like?

We asked you for your ideas.

Meili

I'm going to be an architect. I'm interested in making buildings more green. In the future we won't need electricity power stations. Each house will produce enough energy from the sun for heating and lights.

I think we'll spend too much time in virtual worlds. Even when we travel – the car will drive itself and we will sit inside and play computer games. We'll probably even forget to look out of the window. Maybe the computer will send you a message saying 'It's sunny today, did you know?' or 'Look out! You're going to crash!'

Seb

Boris

Your fridge will be 'intelligent'. When you don't have any food, the supermarket will automatically send you your favourite things.

- 1 Who is worried about the future?
- 2 Who is hoping to do less shopping?

Will and be going to

Will

- 1 Use will with the infinitive without to. The short form 'll is used mainly with pronouns and in conversation. The negative is will not + infinitive without to. We often use the negative short form: won't.

We'll spend too much time in virtual worlds.

We won't need electricity power stations.

- 2 Will is the most usual way to talk about the future in English. We use it to give information about the future.

The holidays will start soon.

However, we don't use will to talk about plans, arrangements or schedules.

- ▶ See below for be going to for future plans.
- ▶ See Unit 8 for the present continuous and present simple for future schedules and arrangements.

- 3 Use will for instant decisions made at the time of speaking. We often use 'll in this context.

A: I haven't done the washing-up.

B: Don't worry! I'll do it for you.

- 4 Use will for predictions based on your opinion. We often use words like think, hope and be sure with will.

Maybe your computer will send you a message.

I hope she will write soon.

TIP

We often use will with the adverbs certainly, definitely, probably, possibly. Use these adverbs after will but before won't.

I'll definitely go to the party.

Sam probably won't go.

TIP

After when, as soon as, until, after, before, if, unless, we often use the present simple to express the future and not will.

When you don't have any food, the supermarket will automatically send you your favourite things.

NOT When you won't have any food...

- ▶ See Unit 35 for the use of will in the first conditional.

Be going to

- 5 Use am / is / are (not) going to + infinitive without to.

I am (I'm) going to be an architect.

He is (He's) going to crash.

They aren't (They're not) going to run out of food.

TIP

When we are speaking, we often pronounce going to as gonna. Sometimes we spell it as gonna in informal writing too, especially in American English.

- 6 Use be going to for plans and intentions.

She's going to be an architect.

Are you going to clean your shoes?

- 7 Use be going to for predictions based on present evidence.

A large storm is coming towards the east coast of the USA. It's going to reach Florida soon. (We can see that this is going to happen.)

We also use be going to for something which has already started to happen or will happen very soon.

I'm going to be sick.

Will and be going to

- 8 We use both will and be going to for predictions about the future, with slightly different meanings.

They're going to crash. (Something I can see now tells me this.)

I think they'll crash. (This is my opinion.)

- ▶ See Unit 14 for other uses of shall and will.

Practice

This time tomorrow we'll be flying from Hong Kong to Bangkok.
In one week's time Pat will be lying on the beach and I'll be visiting the temples.

What's next?

Next month we're travelling from THAILAND to CAMBODIA and from there we're visiting VIETNAM ...

- 1 Where will Pat and Conor be in September?
- 2 Where will they be in October?

Present continuous and present simple for future use; future continuous

Present continuous for future use

- Use the present continuous form (be + verb + -ing) for plans in the future, especially when we already know the time and place.
Where are you going in September?
We're travelling from Hong Kong to Thailand.
- Sometimes we can use either the present continuous or be going to for plans in the future, especially when we are talking about a decision that we have already made.
I'm going to have my first flying lesson on Friday. = I'm having my first flying lesson on Friday. (= A plan and I know when it is taking place.)

We usually use be going to (not the present continuous) for intentions or plans which have not been arranged.

One day, I'm going to have flying lessons. NOT One day, I'm having flying lessons. (= A plan but I don't know when it will happen.)

▶ See Unit 7 for other uses of be going to for the future.

Present simple for future use

- We use the present simple to talk about future events which are part of a timetable or schedule.
On 2 September we leave Hong Kong.
On Wednesday I have Geography.
- After when, as soon as, until, after, before, if, unless, we often use the present simple to express the future and not will.
When you don't have any food, the supermarket will automatically send you your favourite things.
NOT ~~When you won't have any food...~~

TIP

Write dates with just the number and the month.

2 September / 2nd September (UK English)

September 2 (US English)

But say:

'the second of September' or 'September the second'

Future continuous

- We make the future continuous with will / won't + be + verb + -ing.
While we are having our meeting, the boss will be talking to the builders.
My course finishes at the end of May. I won't be studying in June.
- We occasionally use shall / shan't + be + verb + -ing with I and we in formal language.
I shall be making a speech during the afternoon.
- Use the future continuous to talk about something that will be in progress at a particular time in the future.
This time tomorrow we'll be flying from Hong Kong to Bangkok.

TIP

Note the difference:

At 21.40 I'm flying to Bangkok.

(= My plane takes off at 21.40.)

At 22.00 I'll be flying from Hong Kong to Bangkok.

(= I'll be sitting on the plane on the way to Bangkok.)

Future perfect and other future forms

Will they all have gone?

save our wonderful world what do we do?

animals

Many places in the world are in danger.
If we are to save these places, we need your help.

Zabid is a very old town in Yemen with very interesting buildings. It was once the capital of Yemen and it had an important Islamic university. The problem is that many businesses there need new roads and buildings and the town is changing. Some people say that by 2050 people will have built a new town and all the old places will have gone.

Virunga National Park is in the Congo. It has lots of different animals, like the mountain gorillas in the photograph. Virunga National Park was going to be a great centre for tourists and nature lovers, but everything changed in the 1990s. There were wars in countries near the Congo and many people have come to live in the park. These people are hungry and kill the animals. Will all the animals have died before the wars stop?

Change is possible. In 1965 Venice was on the verge of falling into the sea after some very heavy rain, but today, after a lot of building work, it is one of the most popular tourist places in the world. By the end of this summer, two million people will have visited Venice.

This building was the only building left in Hiroshima after the nuclear bomb fell in 1945. The sad history of Hiroshima tells us that we – people – are the biggest danger to this beautiful world, its places, people and animals. When we are about to do something bad, we should think about this.

True or False?

- 1 Zabid is the capital of Yemen.
- 2 Venice is a good example of how we can save interesting places.
- 3 Hiroshima 1945 is a bad example of what people can do.

	statement ✓	negative ✗
I / You / He / She / It / We / They	will have ('ll) have finished.	will not (won't) have finished.

Make questions and short answers as follows:

question ?	short answer ✓ ✗
Will I / you / he / she / it / we / they have finished?	Yes, (he) will (have). No, (he) won't (have).

- 2 Use the future perfect to talk about actions and situations that will be finished by a certain time in the future.

By the end of this summer, two million people will have visited Venice.

Will all the animals have died before the wars stop?

This time next week I will have finished all my exams.

TIP

Don't use the future perfect for states, use will.

You'll be very tired by the time you get home.

NOT ... will have been very tired...

- 3 We often use the future perfect with a time phrase about the future.

Do you think the tour will have finished by 17.00?

The old town will have changed completely before they do anything.

Be + to-infinitive

- 4 Use be + to-infinitive to talk about plans and arrangements in formal language. We don't usually use be + to-infinitive in negatives and questions.

The King is to visit Zabid tomorrow.

- 5 Use if + is / are to ... to show that something must happen before something else.

If we are to save these places, we need your help.
(= We need your help before we can save these places.)

Be about to

- 6 Use be about + to-infinitive to talk about actions and situations that are going to happen very soon or immediately.

When countries are about to start a war ...
The match is about to begin.

TIP

We can also use be on the verge of + -ing and be on the point of + -ing, to talk about actions and situations that will happen soon.

The park is on the verge / on the point of closing.

Present perfect

- 7 We can use the present perfect to talk about actions and situations in the future that will finish before something else happens.

After you've seen Venice, go to Rome.
I'll phone you when I've finished.

Future in the past

- 8 We can use past forms of future forms, e.g. am going to → was going to, are trying → were trying, to talk about actions and situations in the past that were planned but did not happen, or that were planned but we don't know if they happened.

The park was going to be a great tourist centre.
(This was a plan but it never happened because of the war.)

We were visiting Yemen later that month, so we needed visas. (This was a plan but we don't know if they went or not.)

Practice

This time ¹ last year my older brother Matt was working in a special park for wild animals in Bolivia. Matt has been very interested in animals ever ² he was a small boy, and he absolutely loved Inti Wara Yassi, as the park is called. It was first opened over 20 years ³ by two young Bolivians, Juan Carlos and Nena. ⁴ they started the park, their aim was to provide care for five monkeys which had not been well looked after by their owners, but ⁵ they realised there were lots of other wild animals in need of help. So, ⁶ the 1990s, they started to look after wild cats, bears and birds, and they now have over 700 animals in their care. People come from all round the world to help them. Matt worked there ⁷ six months. He looked after monkeys and wild cats and he said it was one of the best things he'd ⁸ done in his life. Personally, I ⁹ used to like animals very much, but ¹⁰ , after listening to Matt's stories, I've become interested in them and I want to visit Inti Wara Yassi myself. I ¹¹ haven't decided when I'm going but I hope it's soon.

Modals of ability and obligation 1

Six astronauts can stay there.

Space stations are places for astronauts to work and study life in space. The biggest space station is the International Space Station; six astronauts can stay there. Astronauts are able to stay on space stations for a long time - the longest was 437 days - but they need to be strong and healthy because life is very difficult in space.

Usually, if you drop an apple, it must fall down: this is because of gravity. But in space there is no gravity, so astronauts cannot stand or walk normally. This makes it difficult for them to exercise their legs, so they have to do special exercises every day to keep fit.

There are no showers on the International Space Station - water cannot go down! - so astronauts have to have baths. Astronauts have got to be very careful with washing because they have very little water. It cannot rain in space.

The International Space Station

Could we live in space in the future? Not very soon. You need to have a lot of money to build a space city and not many countries could do this. Even if we are able to live in space, life wouldn't be easy there. We should make where we live a nicer place instead!

- 1 What is the longest time someone has stayed in space?
- 2 How do astronauts wash in space?

Answers: 1 437 days 2 They have baths.

Modals of ability and obligation 1

- 1 Can, could, must and should are modal verbs. Use a second verb in the infinitive without to after modal verbs. Make negatives with not. Put them before the subject in questions.

Six astronauts can stay there.

You must not use too much water.

Could we live in space?

Can / be able to

- 2 Use can (not) and be (not) able to for talking about present ability. Be able to is less common and more formal.

Can you see the moon?

Astronauts are able to stay on space stations for a long time.

- 3 Use will be able to for future ability. The negative form of the future is will not be able to or won't be able to.

One day we will be able to live on the moon.

She won't be able to walk after a year in space.

- 4 We can also use can for future ability if we are talking about a possible plan.

I can't meet Ted today but I can see him tomorrow.

- 5 Could = would be able to.

Could people live in space in the future?

She could be a scientist if she wanted to.

Must, have to, should

- 6 There are no past or future forms of must. Use forms of have to for obligation in the past or the future.

Yesterday I had to do my science homework and today I must give it to the teacher.

The first spaceships had to be very small.

Will we have to live in space one day?

- 7 Use must and have to to talk about rules and laws, or something that is necessary.

You must never look at the sun through a telescope.

Astronauts have to be intelligent.

- 8 Use must to talk about what the speaker thinks is necessary. Have to is usually about an obligation imposed on the speaker by others or the situation. Questions are more common with have to than must.

I must phone Bill, I really want to speak to him.

I have to stay at home – the doctor is coming. (The speaker can't change the situation.)

Do I have to phone Bill? (not usually Must I phone Bill?)

TIP

Have got to means the same as have to but it is more informal.

Have you got to read that boring book?

- 9 Use mustn't or can't (NOT ~~don't have to~~) to talk about things we are not allowed to do.

You mustn't / can't park your car here.

- 10 Use don't have to or doesn't have to for something which is not necessary.

You don't have to come with me. Stay at home if you want.

- 11 Use should to say what it is necessary to do and to give advice. Should is not as strong as must.

We should make where we live a nicer place!

You shouldn't do it if you don't like it.

Ought to, need, had better

- 12 Ought to = should but it is much less common. Ought to (negative ought not to) is very rare in questions.

Astronauts ought to exercise every day.

- 13 Need is usually followed by the to-infinitive, but sometimes it is a modal verb. The future is will need to.

She needs to train more.

Need I go?

Will we need to go?

- 14 Do not need to, or need not, means there is no obligation.

You don't need to explain. I already understand.

We needn't take any money.

TIP

We can use There's no need to ... when there is no obligation.

Everything is all right. There's no need to worry.

- 15 Use had better to give strong advice or orders. The form is always past and it is followed by the infinitive without to. The negative is had better not. The question form is not very often used.

We had better make Earth a nicer place.

You'd better listen to me!

- 6 She _____ do the test again.
- 7 I _____ speak to my mum.
- 8 My friend _____ ride a bike.

F Circle the correct option.

At the moment we ¹... travel between planets but we ²... travel between stars. Stars are very far away from each other and our spaceships ³... go fast enough to get there. The nearest star to the Sun is Proxima Centauri but a spaceship ⁴... only get there in a few thousand years. But why ⁵... we go to other stars? Well, stars are very important, so we ⁶... know more about them. For example, our nearest star is the Sun – you can see it from your window, but you ⁷... look too long because it can be bad for your eyes. We ⁸... live without the Sun because it gives our planet energy. We ⁹... visit other stars to know about them because we have very good telescopes, but if you really want to see 'life' on stars you ¹⁰... watch films or read books.

Modals of ability and obligation 2

He should have given the dog a biscuit.

Yesterday the police had to help a robber who couldn't get down from a tree. Jim Sly went into the house of 80-year-old Emily Bishop while she was asleep. Her dog, Rover, woke up and ran after Sly. The dog could run fast but Sly was able to get into the garden and up the tree. Emily said, 'The man needn't have run away. Rover is a very nice dog. He should have said Hello and given him a biscuit.'

The multi-millionaire Kelly Rogers has sold both her houses and gone to live in a small village in Scotland. 'I should have done this years ago,' she said. 'I needed to change my life and do something new. This simple life is so exciting. This morning my chef had to walk to the shops! (He couldn't drive the Rolls Royce there because my gardener was using it.) I feel like a normal person again.'

Tom Brown has finished his university course – after 24 years. He started his course in 1985 but he wasn't able to finish it until this June. 'It's been a long time,' said Tom. 'I should have finished in 1988 but I had to get a job to pay for the course. I didn't have to do this course but it was interesting. Maybe I'll study something new now.'

Match each person to the correct action:

- | | |
|---------|-----------------------|
| 1 Emily | a finished university |
| 2 Sly | b bought a new house |
| 3 Kelly | c ran away from a dog |
| 4 Tom | d phoned the police |

Modals of ability and obligation 2

Could and be able to

- 1 Use could (not) or was / were (not) able to for ability in the past. Could is more common than was / were able to.
The dog could run fast.
He wasn't able to finish it.
- 2 Use was / were able to (NOT ~~could~~) when talking about one event in the past. In the negative, both forms are possible.
He was able to get into the garden. NOT ~~He could...~~
Luckily, I was able to open the door in time.
NOT ~~...I could...~~
I wasn't able to / couldn't open the door in time.

Had to

- 3 There is no past form of must. Use had to for statements and questions about obligation in the past. Use couldn't or wasn't allowed to for negatives.
I had to get a job.
I was on a diet so I couldn't eat chocolate.

Needed to and didn't have to

- 4 Use needed to and had to for what was necessary in the past.
I needed to / had to change my life.
Use didn't need to and didn't have to for what was not necessary in the past.
I didn't need to / didn't have to do this course but it was interesting.

Should have

- 5 Use should have + past participle for something that was necessary in the past but that you didn't do. Use should not have + past participle for something that was unnecessary in the past but that you did anyway.
I should have finished in 1989. (I didn't finish then, unfortunately.)
We shouldn't have broken it. (We did break it, unfortunately.)

Ought to have and need to have

- 6 We sometimes use ought (not) to have, need to have and need not have for obligation in the past but these forms are not very common.
You ought to have listened to me.
The man needn't have run away.

Practice

Possibility and certainty in the present and future

It must be 3.

The brain, just like the body, needs exercise. Some scientists say that doing puzzles may help you to think more clearly. Puzzles could also improve your memory, especially as you get older. One puzzle a year may not make much difference – but doing one every day might even prevent mental illness.

Sudoku are number puzzles which are very popular in Japan, the UK and the USA. In this example, each row, column and box should contain each of the numbers 1 to 6.

This number can't be 1.
It must be 3.

This number must be 1.

Now look at this puzzle picture. What do you see? It might be a woman's face. She might be looking down. It could be a man's face. He could be looking over his shoulder. Turn the picture on its side and you may not see a picture any more – you may see a word instead.

- 1 Why is it good to do puzzles?
- 2 What are the different things people may see in the puzzle picture?

Answers: 1. Puzzles may help you think more clearly. They could improve your memory and might prevent mental illness when you are older.
2. A woman's face or a man looking over his shoulder; the hidden word is 'hair'.

Possibility and certainty in the present and future

- 1 Must, may, might, could and can't are modal verbs. After modal verbs we use the infinitive without to. The modal verb does not change.
He could be looking over his shoulder.
They may not know the answer.
- 2 Use must to say that you think something is certain or very probable. The negative of must is can't.
It must be 3. (= I am certain the answer is 3.)
It can't be 1. (= I am certain the answer is not 1. OR 1 is not possible.)

TIP

In this context, the negative of must is can't, not mustn't.

It can't be 1. NOT ~~It mustn't be 1.~~

- 3 Use may, might or could to mean 'It is possible that ...'. We often use might when something is less likely.
You may see a word. (= It's possible that you can see a word.)
He could be looking over his shoulder. (= It's possible that he's looking over his shoulder.)
It might be a woman's face. (= It's possible that it's a woman's face.)

TIP

We don't use can to mean 'It is possible that ...'.

It could be a man's face.

NOT ~~It can be a man's face.~~

- 4 Use may not and might not to mean 'It is possible that ... not ...'. We don't often use could not in this context.
The story may not / might not be true. (= It's possible that the story is not true.)
- 5 We use may, might or could to talk about something which will possibly happen in the future. Negatives are may not and might not. We don't often use could not in this context.
It could improve your memory as you get older.
It may not make any difference to you in the future.

TIP

Note the difference:

✓ I will see you later.

? I may see you later.

✗ They won't be at the party tomorrow.

? They might not be at the party tomorrow.

The Great Sphinx

Who built the Great Sphinx, and when?

The Great Sphinx is at Giza in Egypt next to the Great Pyramids.

The Pyramids were built by pharaohs in approximately 2500 BC. The Great Sphinx has the body of a lion and the face of a man. Many scientists think the man may have been Khafre, a pharaoh at that time.

However, scientists do not all agree on this. John West and Robert Schoch have discovered water erosion on the Sphinx. But, in the middle of the Egyptian desert, where could the water have come from? Heavy rain was only common in Egypt around 5000 BC. So West and Schoch believe that Khafre can't have built the Sphinx. The Sphinx must already have existed at Giza when the pyramids were built. But we have no idea who might have built it.

- 1 Whose face does the Sphinx possibly have?
- 2 Why do some scientists think the Sphinx is from 5000 BC?

Answers: 1 Khafre, a pharaoh in approximately 2500 BC
2 Because of water erosion on the Sphinx.

Possibility and certainty in the past

- 1 Use must have + past participle to say that you think something in the past was certain or very probable.

The Sphinx must have existed at Giza when the pyramids were built. (= The scientists are certain it existed at Giza.)

There's a message from Lily. She must have called when we were out.

- 2 The negative of must have is can't have or couldn't have. Use can't have or couldn't have + past participle to say that you think something in the past was not possible or did not happen.

Khafre can't have built the Sphinx. NOT ~~Khafre mustn't have built~~... (= The scientists are certain Khafre did not build the Sphinx or it is not possible that Khafre built the Sphinx.)

The driver didn't stop. He couldn't have seen the red light.

- 3 Use may have or might have + past participle to say that you think something in the past was possible.

The man may have been Khafre. (= It's possible that the man was Khafre.)

The man might not have been Khafre. (= It's possible that the man was not Khafre.)

She didn't do the homework. She might have found it too difficult.

- 4 Use might have or could have + past participle (but not usually may have) to say that something in the past was possible, but did not happen.

He could / might have become a great ruler, but he died young.

You didn't tell me you had no money. I could have lent you some.

- See Units 10, 11 and 12 for the form of modal verbs and for the use of modal verbs to express possibility in the present and future.

Requests, permission, offers, suggestions, promises

Could you take your hat off, please?

- 1 In cartoon B, where are the snails' homes?
 - 2 In cartoon D, why does the man want to come in?

Answers: 1 The snails' homes are on their backs!
2 The man wants to steal the woman's things!

Requests, permission, offers, suggestions, promises

Requests

TIP To make a polite request, it is not sufficient to just add please. You should use a modal verb to be polite.

Could you take off your hat, please?

NOT Take off your hat, please.

- 1 Use the modal verbs can / could / may to ask for something politely. May is more formal.
A: Can / Could / May I have your name and address, please?
B: Sure / No problem.
- 2 Use can / could / will / would to ask someone politely to do something.
A: Can / Could / Will / Would you take off your hat, please?
B: Of course.
- 3 If we want to be very polite, we can make requests with Do you think you could ...?, Could you possibly ...? or Do / Would you mind + verb + -ing ...?
A: Do you think you could / Could you possibly take off your hat?
B: Of course.
A: Do / Would you mind opening the window?
B: No, not at all. OR Of course not.

TIP Could and would are more polite than can and will.
Would you take a photo of us, please?
I'm taking these boxes to the car. Could you help?

Permission

- 4 We can use the modal verbs can, could and may with the first person to ask for permission. Could is more polite than can. May is formal.

We usually give permission with can or may, or we can just say Of course, Sure or Sorry.

A: Can I come in? B: Yes, you can. / Sure.

A: Could we come in? B: No, you can't! / No, sorry.

A: May I come in? B: Yes, you may. / Of course.

- 5 Other ways of asking for permission without using a modal are Do you mind if ...? or Is it all right if ...?

A: Do you mind / Is it all right if I come in?

B: Yes, of course / Sorry, no.

► See Unit 20 for let and allow.

Offers

- 6 Use I'll / We'll to offer to do something for someone (NOT shall / will).

I'll do that for you!

We use Shall I / we ...? or Can I / we ...? for a more polite offer.

Shall / Can I help you cross the road?

Suggestions

- 7 Use the modal verbs could, might or Shall we ...? to suggest an idea for you or other people to do.

Shall we go out?

We could / might go to the cinema.

- 8 Other ways of making suggestions are: Let's ..., Why don't we ...?, How about + verb + -ing?

Let's go home.

Why don't we go home?

How about going home?

Promises

- 9 Use I / We will or I'll / We'll to make promises.

I will always love you.

In British English, shall is sometimes used after we and I.

I shall always love you.

► See Unit 10 for the form of modal verbs.

Practice

A Underline the correct option.

 Laura: Thanks, Leo! I 11 imagine what I'd do without you!

What is language?

What is language is language

Do animals have languages?

A difficult question. Some animals can communicate well but they usually have different systems of communication; for example, bees dance. Scientists have trained monkeys to learn and repeat words, but monkeys can't really use grammar.

What is language?

A system where signs (words) are put into patterns (grammar) for people to use and understand.

Why do we have language, then?

We have big brains and we can make a lot of different sounds. Some people think we are born with a special language-learning program in our brains.

How many languages are there in the world?

About 6,000. Sadly, that number is going down because many small languages are dying.

Which language has the most words?

English. There are over 500,000 words in the English language. English speakers only know a small number of these words. Shakespeare used about 30,000 different words.

What is the longest word in English?

Many scientific words are very long. For example, there is a disease pneumonoultramicroscopicosilicovolcanoconiosis which has 45 letters. Can you say it?!

human brain

monkey brain

elephant brain

True or False?

- 1 Animals can learn grammar.
- 2 Shakespeare knew 500,000 words.

Answers: 1 False 2 False

Question forms

Yes / no questions

- 1 To make a yes / no question, put the auxiliary verb (e.g. am, were, have, should) before the subject.
Is it an English word?
Have you studied French?
Can you pronounce it?
- 2 If there is no auxiliary verb, use do, does or did.
Do you speak English?
Did she understand?
- 3 Make a yes / no answer with just the subject pronoun and the auxiliary verb.
A: Is it true? B: Yes, it is. / No, it isn't.
A: Was she speaking? B: Yes, she was. / No, she wasn't.

Wh-questions

- 4 With where, when, why, how and whose, the word order is question word + auxiliary + subject + main verb.
Where are you going?
Why do we have language, then?
- 5 If who, what or which are the subject, we don't use do.
Who knows French?
Which language has the most words?

- 6 If who, what or which are the object, we use do.
Who did you see?
What has she done?
- 7 Use what + noun for general questions when there are many possibilities, and which + noun when there is a small or limited number of possibilities.
What time is it?
Which language is more difficult – Chinese or Japanese?
- 8 Ask questions about size, age, time, etc. using How + an adjective or an adverb.
How big is the Cambridge Advanced Dictionary?
How long did you learn Italian?
How old is the English language?
How tall is your father?

Short questions

- 9 Make a short question with an auxiliary verb and pronoun.
A: Children in Ireland all learn Irish. B: Do they?
A: Jane hasn't passed her French test. B: Hasn't she?

TIP

If a yes / no question is negative, the answer we want or expect is yes.

Don't they speak Spanish in Argentina? (Of course they do!).

Wasn't Columbus an Italian?

Question tags

Babies don't have teeth, do they?

TEETH

New babies don't have teeth, do they?

Yes, they do, but their teeth don't show until they are about six months old.

A baby doesn't have the same number of teeth as an adult, does it?

No, it doesn't. We have two sets of teeth in our lives. The first set has 20 teeth, the second set has 32. Children start getting their second teeth when they are about six years old.

There are different types of teeth, aren't there?

Yes, there are. We have incisors and molars. The incisors cut food and the molars make food easier to eat.

We should clean our teeth every day, shouldn't we?

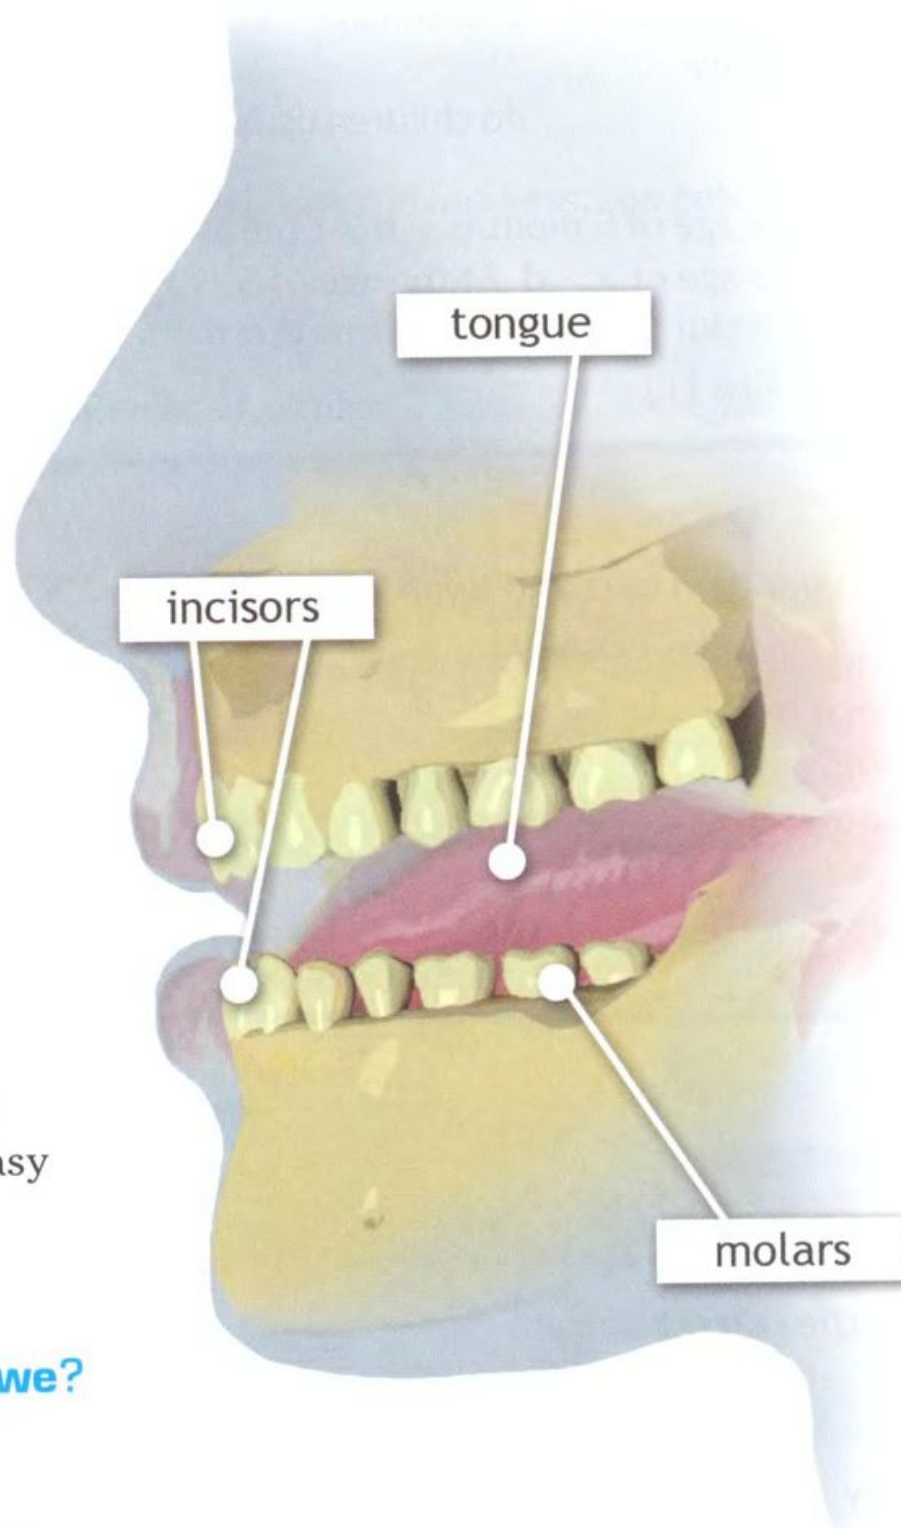

Twice a day is better. Our molars have the most problems because we use them a lot in eating.

But people's teeth are healthier today, aren't they?

Yes and no. We have dentists and technology, but we eat, and drink, a lot of sweet things. Food today is often cooked and easy to eat, so we don't use our teeth so much and, like people, teeth get lazy!

So we won't need so many teeth in the future, will we?

Maybe not! That's bad news for dentists, isn't it?

- 1 Very small children have teeth.
a no b 20 c 32
- 2 When you bite into an apple you use your a incisors b molars c tongue

Question tags

- 1 A sentence with a question tag has a main clause (You know Simon ...) and a question tag (... don't you?). The question tag has an auxiliary (e.g. is, do, have) or a modal (e.g. will, can) + a subject pronoun.

main clause question tag

He's coming, isn't he?

They won't go, will they?

If there is no auxiliary or modal, use a form of do in the correct tense.

You know Dr Jones, don't you?

I'm in the main clause → aren't I in the question tag.

I'm right, aren't I?

- 2 Usually, if the main clause is affirmative, the question tag is negative.

She's a dentist, isn't she?

It could help, couldn't it?

If the main clause is negative, the question tag is affirmative.

You don't feel well, do you?

We won't need so many teeth, will we?

However, I'll in the main clause → shall I in the question tag.

I'll buy some toothpaste, shall I?

▶ See point 5 for more exceptions to this.

- 3 If there is a negative word like never, no and nobody in the main clause, the question tag is affirmative.

There is nothing wrong with my teeth, is there?

TIP

After somebody, nobody and everybody, the verb in the main clause is singular but the tag is plural.

Nobody knows, do they?

- 4 Use question tags in speaking to check information or to check that the listener agrees with you.

Chocolate isn't good for your teeth, is it?

We should clean our teeth every day, shouldn't we?

- 5 We sometimes tell people to do things using the question tags will / would / can / could you? In these situations, the question tag is in the affirmative, not the negative.

Be quiet, could you?

Stop it, will you?

- 6 We use a rising intonation (our voice goes up ↗) if we aren't sure of the answer. We use a falling intonation (our voice goes down ↘) if we are fairly sure of the answer.

You're American, aren't you? (You have an American accent.)

You're American, aren't you? (Or are you Canadian?)

- 7 Make a short answer with a subject pronoun and an auxiliary verb.

A: You're OK, aren't you? B: Yes, I am.

A: Did you see the dentist? B: No, I didn't.

- 8 We can agree to affirmative statements with so + auxiliary verb + subject, or subject + auxiliary verb + too.

A: I'm a dentist. B: So am I. / I am too.

A: Boys like science. B: So do girls. / Girls do too.

TIP

In conversation, we can use Me too. This is informal.

A: I'm hungry. B: Me too!

- 9 We can agree to negative statements with neither + auxiliary verb + subject, or subject + auxiliary verb + not + either.

A: I don't like Biology. B: Neither do I. / I don't either.

A: Jack hasn't finished. B: Neither have we. / We haven't either.

TIP

In conversation, we can use Me neither. This is informal.

A: I'm not happy about it. B: Me neither.

Imagine the scene. It's the end of a long day. The teacher is still talking but you're not listening any more. You start drawing pictures – or doodles – in the back of your notebook. But are they just doodles? Graphologists say that your doodles tell us a lot about you ...

So what are you thinking about? What are you worrying about? And what are you looking for? Let's take a look.

Lots of lines

This means: Don't put up with things any more. You need to make some changes to your life.

Hearts

This means: Your happiness depends on others.

Dark shapes

This means: You are worrying about something in your life.

Flowers

This means: You like people and get on with them well.

- 1 What are doodles?
- 2 Why might doodles be important?

Answers: 1 Pictures you draw – often when you are bored.
2 They tell graphologists a lot about people.

Multi-word verbs 1: prepositional verbs

- 1 Prepositional verbs have two or three words: verb + preposition (+ preposition).

Your happiness depends on others.
You get on with people well.

- 2 The meanings of some prepositional verbs are clear but you need to know which preposition to use.

Your happiness depends on others. NOT ... ~~of~~ others.

Some two-word verbs like this are:

(dis)agree with	learn about believe in	listen to belong to	look at come from	pay for
complain about	run into consist of	smile at depend on	speak to get in (to)	suffer from get off	talk about
get on	talk to get out (of)	think about happen to	think of hear of	wait for know about	work on laugh at	worry about

TIP

get in(to) and get out (of) + a car, taxi

Quick – get in the car!

get on and get off + bike, bus, train, ship, horse

Get on the train – it's just leaving!

- 3 Sometimes the meaning of the verb + preposition is very different from the meaning of the verb on its own.

Note the difference:

Look! Eve's got a new bike.

We looked after my neighbour's dog last weekend.
(= took care of)

Some two-word verbs like this are:

ask for	go with
come across	look after deal with	look for go for	look like go through

Some three-word verbs are:

come up with	look forward to get on with	put up with go up to

TIP

Sometimes the same verb can have more than one meaning:

She's going for gold at the next Olympics. (= trying to win or get something)

I don't know which to go for. (= choose)

- 4 Usually the noun or pronoun comes immediately after the preposition.

I'm worrying about my exams.

You get on with him well.

- 5 Questions that begin with What or Who may end with the preposition.

What are you worrying about?

Who are you looking for?

- 6 Some prepositional verbs take two objects.

She asked me for some money.

Some prepositional verbs like this are:

accuse (someone) of (something) ask (someone) for (something) blame (something) on (someone) blame (someone) for (something) congratulate (someone) on (something) discuss (something) with (someone) divide (something) into (something) pay (someone) for (something) remind (someone) of (somebody)

► See Unit 18 for phrasal verbs.

TIP

There is often a one-word verb equivalent for prepositional verbs. The one-word verb is usually more formal than the prepositional verb.

look for = search go for = choose talk about = discuss

Are these the 6 best ways to get fit?

1

Surprise your friends and tidy up. It uses a lot of energy to pick up all those clothes from under the bed.

2

Do you like chocolate? The good news is, you can still have chocolate! But why don't you put on your trainers and run to the shop to buy some?

3

Don't ask your parents to pick you up. Walking home with your friends is fun and gets you fit.

4

Put your alarm clock outside your bedroom door. When it goes off, run and turn it off ... before it wakes everyone else up!

5

You don't have to take up a new sport to get fit. Just include sport in your weekend. Is there a swimming pool near you? Find out and go with your friends.

6

Are you someone who is always changing the TV programme? Why don't you throw away the remote control? And then get up to change the TV programme every ten minutes ...

- 1 Do you do any of these things?
- 2 Which do you think is the best way of keeping fit?

Multi-word verbs 2: phrasal verbs

- 1 Phrasal verbs have two words: verb + particle (usually an adverb). Some phrasal verbs have an object and some don't.

Put on your trainers.

Why don't you find out?

- 2 Some phrasal verbs which we often use without an object are:

break down	go off
come in / go in	go on
come on	hurry up
come out / go out	lie down
come over	run away
get away	run out
get in	sit down
get out	stand up
get up	turn round

- 3 Some phrasal verbs which we usually use with an object are:

look up	take back
make up	take up
pick up	tell off
put down	throw away
put on	turn off / on
set up
take away

- 4 There are some verbs we can use in both ways.

I got back very late.

I went to the shop and got my money back.

Other examples are:

find out	turn down / up
give up	wake up
take off	wash up
tidy up

- 5 If the phrasal verb takes an object, it can go before or after the particle.

Put on your trainers.

Put your trainers on.

This is different from prepositional verbs.

- See Unit 17 point 4.

- 6 If the object is a personal pronoun, it always comes before the particle.

Put them on. NOT Put on them.

TIP

There is often a one-word verb equivalent for phrasal verbs. The one-word verb is usually more formal than the prepositional verb.

come in = enter

hold up = delay

find out = discover

run away = escape

- 7 Sometimes one verb can have more than one meaning.

The alarm clock goes off at 6 am. (= makes a loud noise)

There's a problem with the lights – they often go off.

(= stop working)

They turned up late. (= arrived)

Can you turn the music up? (= make louder)

TIP

There are some nouns which are based on phrasal verbs, e.g.:

break-in lie-in breakdown printout

check-out takeover hand-out turn-out

- See Unit 17 for prepositional verbs.

Verb + to-infinitive or -ing

He decided to run without shoes.

Abebe Bikila began running to school when he was very young but he couldn't afford to buy running shoes. So Bikila always ran without shoes. He decided to run without shoes in the 1960 Olympic marathon and managed to win. Bikila was first again in 1964 but he failed to win in 1968 because he had problems with his shoes!

Oprah Winfrey's parents were very poor and she had to live with her grandmother – she remembers her grandmother hitting her if she didn't remember to do the housework – but she enjoyed reading and soon learned to write. While she was still at school, Oprah started to work on the radio and today she is one of the most famous, and richest, women on American television.

John Grisham wrote his first book while he was working as a lawyer. He sent the book to many publishers but no one wanted to take it. Finally, a small publisher agreed to buy the book. The other publishers now regret saying no to Grisham because he has sold more than 250 million books.

- 1 How many Olympic marathons did Bikila win?
- 2 Was Oprah's first job on radio or television?
- 3 Does Grisham still write books?

Answers: 1 Two 2 Radio 3 Yes

Verb + to-infinitive or -ing

1 Some verbs take a to-infinitive, e.g. ask to go. Some verbs take an -ing form, e.g. enjoy doing. Some take both, e.g. like to do / like doing. There are no rules for this; you need to learn which verb takes a to-infinitive and which takes -ing.

2 These verbs take a to-infinitive:

afford	Bikila couldn't afford to buy running shoes.
agree	They agreed not to tell Maggie.
arrange	They arranged to meet at 6.
ask	Ask to see a doctor.
decide	Bikila decided to run without shoes.
deserve	Bikila deserved to win in 1960.
fail	Grisham failed to find a publisher.
help	Who helped to make it?
learn	Oprah soon learned to write.
manage	Bikila managed to win.
need	Do you need to phone Louis?
promise	You must promise not to be late.
refuse	Jan refused to see him.
seem	It seems to be a nice day.
want	No one wanted to take the book.

3 These verbs take -ing:

admit	The children admitted not going to the lesson.
avoid	You can't avoid meeting him.
deny	She denied doing anything wrong.
enjoy	Oprah enjoyed reading.
keep (on)	Don't stop, keep running!
miss	Do you miss having a dog?
recommend	Doctors recommend eating more fruit and vegetables.
suggest	I suggest writing her a nice email.

4 These verbs take to or -ing, with very little difference in meaning:

begin	Bikila began to run / running to school.
continue	Grisham continues to write / writing books.
hate	I hate to get / getting up early.
like	Susan likes to wear / wearing black.
love	Jack loved to read / reading in bed.
prefer	Most people prefer to travel / travelling by plane.
start	Oprah started to work / working on the radio.

5 These verbs take to or -ing, but there is a difference in meaning:

need

need + to has an active meaning.

I need to go home.

need + -ing has a passive meaning.

My car needs cleaning.

try

try + to = 'try, but you may not succeed'.

We've got a busy day tomorrow. Try to sleep.

try + -ing means 'see how it works', or 'experience' something.

I tried sleeping on the floor but it didn't help my back.

We use regret + to to give bad news in formal writing.

We regret to inform you that your job application has been unsuccessful.

We use regret + -ing for things in the past we are sorry about.

They regret saying no to Grisham.

remember and forget

We use remember and forget + to for things we need to do.

I forgot to buy some flowers.

We use remember and forget + -ing for memories of the past.

Oprah remembers her grandmother hitting her if she didn't remember to do the housework.

stop

We use stop + to when we stop in order to do something.

I stopped to buy some eggs.

We use stop + -ing when we no longer do something.

Bikila stopped running in 1971.

TIP

Would like (short form: 'd like) + to is one way of saying want or might want. Use Would you like + to for a polite invitation.

I'd like to run in the Olympics.

Would you like to have a coffee?

E Rewrite each sentence so that it has a similar meaning, using the verb in brackets.

- Susan really likes shopping. (love)

Verb + object + to-infinitive

Greg made the children work 60 hours a week.

Samuel Greg (1758–1834) had a clothes factory near Manchester. The industrial revolution in England helped him become very rich. Greg needed workers but he wanted them to work for little money, so he invited children to work for him. Soon half of his workers were children.

Greg made the children work 60 hours a week. There was nothing illegal or strange about this at that time. The law let him employ children as young as five years old. Greg forced them to stay in a special house for children and warned them not to leave without his permission. However, the house was quite comfortable and the children had enough to eat. Meat was expensive then but Greg allowed the children to eat meat on Sundays, and his wife, Hannah, encouraged them to read and write.

A new law in 1844 ordered factories to stop using child workers. Today, Greg's factory is a museum where you can watch museum workers make clothes in the traditional way, ask them questions and hear them talk about the hard times of the past.

- 1 Who was Samuel Greg?
 a a factory worker b a businessman c a teacher
- 2 How often did the children eat meat?
 a once a week b once a month c never

Answers: 1b 2a

Verb + object + to-infinitive

1 These verbs take an object and to:

- advise I advise you to study history.
- allow Greg allowed the children to eat meat on Sundays.
- ask Don't ask me to work at the weekend!
- encourage Hannah encouraged them to read.
- force Greg forced them to stay there.
- order The new law ordered factories to stop using children.
- persuade Please persuade Alice to take the job.
- invite He invited children to work for him.
- need The boss needs me to do it.
- remind Remind Samuel to tell Hannah about the meeting.
- teach She taught them to read.
- tell Greg told the children to go to bed.
- warn He warned them not to leave the house.
- want Greg wanted his workers to be cheap.

2 These verbs take an object and the infinitive without to:

- feel I felt his hand touch my shoulder.
- hear Did you hear him say it?
- let The law let him employ five-year-olds.
- make Greg made them work hard.
- notice I didn't notice the machine start.
- see Did you see it happen?
- watch You can watch people make clothes.

3 Help can take to or the infinitive without to after the object.

It helped him (to) become rich.

TIP

There are no rules for which verbs take which forms. When you learn a new verb, learn also the form which it takes. A good dictionary will show this information.

remind /rɪ'maɪnd/
 ► verb [T] E to make someone think of something they have forgotten: Could you remind Paul about dinner on Saturday? ○ [+ to INFINITIVE] Please remind me to post this letter. ○ [+ (that)] I rang Jill and reminded her (that) the conference had been cancelled.

TIP

In speaking, get + object + to = persuade.
Get Jack to help. He's not very busy.

| 3 Bom-i | c Organic food is kinder for animals. |

Linking verbs: be, get, feel, etc.

1 A linking verb links a noun or a pronoun with an adjective or noun. The most common linking verb is be.

Organic food is natural.

Is it a banana?

2 Some linking verbs describe things that change (become, get, go, grow, turn) or stay the same (keep, remain, stay).

The milk turned green.

Organic food stays fresher for longer.

3 Some verbs of change are used in special ways.

We use turn and go with colours. Go is more informal.

The sky turned / went black.

Go describes bad changes.

The milk went bad.

We use get or become, not go, with old, tired and ill.

She becomes / gets tired very quickly. NOT ...goes...

4 We can often use either get or become. Get is more common and informal.

Organic food is getting / becoming more popular.

Become, not get, can be followed by a noun when it is a linking word.

I became a student. NOT I got a student.

Use get, not become, in imperatives, and for shorter processes.

Get dressed! NOT Become dressed!

Could you please get ready on time? NOT ...become ready...

► See Units 33 and 34 for get in passives and get as a causative verb.

5 Some linking verbs describe senses, e.g. appear, feel, look, seem, smell, sound, taste.

This milk smells bad.

It tastes great.

6 Use What does it look / feel / etc. like ...? or What is it like? to ask questions about the senses. The answer has a linking verb and an adjective, or a linking verb + like and a noun.

A: What does she look like? B: She's tall and slim.

A: What does it taste like? B: It's like a lemon.

A: What's your new bike like? B: It's great!

A: What's Birmingham like? B: It's like Manchester.

TIP

We often ask about the weather with What + be + the weather like?

A: What's the weather like?

B: It's cold and it's raining.

7 Prepositional verbs with like, e.g. look like, smell like etc. mean resemble. They are followed by a noun.

I look like my father.

It feels like winter.

8 A few descriptive verbs, e.g. lie, fall, sit and stand, can sometimes be linking verbs.

I lay awake.

Mike fell ill.

9 All linking verbs can be followed by an adjective, but be, become, feel, look, remain, stay and sound can also be followed by nouns.

I felt foolish / a fool.

It looks nice / a nice day.

We stayed friendly / friends.

TIP

Some adjectives (e.g. some beginning with a-, like afraid, alive, alone, asleep, awake, and ill and well) are usually used after linking verbs, especially be.

The baby is asleep.

I don't feel well.

TIP

Note the difference:

He looked strange.

(Look describes a sense, so it is a linking verb followed by an adjective.)

He looked at me strangely.

(Look is an action, so it is followed by an adverb.)

G Circle the correct option.

I'm Irish and I've always lived in Ireland but a couple of years ago I ¹... very interested in Japanese culture, so when my dad suggested going there on holiday it sounded ²... a really good idea. So, last April we – that's my parents, my seven-year-old brother Charlie and me – flew to Tokyo. At first, everything ³...amazing. It all ⁴... so different from Ireland – the people, the language, the shops, and the food, which we'd been a bit nervous about, tasted ⁵... . But after about three days my dad ⁶... ill with a stomach infection and he didn't want to leave the hotel. Also, Charlie ⁷... tired of going round Tokyo, so my mum suggested that we should visit a special children's theme park called Kidzania. At first I ⁸... afraid it would only be suitable for small children but I was pleased we went in the end. What happens is you choose a job, you ⁹... dressed up in the clothes of that job and you act it out, so you can ¹⁰... like you are really doing that job. Charlie, for example, ¹¹... a pilot – well, he wore a pilot's clothes and pretended to fly a plane, while I chose to be a doctor. I felt a bit ¹²... at first, but in the end I had a really good time. It's definitely one of the best things to do in Tokyo.

A famous code

People have used codes to send secret messages since Roman times. But codes are not just something used by Julius Caesar or a spy. People today use codes every time they pay for something by credit card or send an email to a friend. Codes protect our personal information.

Before computers, the biggest users of codes were governments, who used them particularly in war. The ancient Greeks sent and received messages using a scytale, a cylinder made of wood. An officer would put cloth around the cylinder and write a message along it. When he took the cloth off, the writing appeared to mean nothing. But the officer who received the cloth had a similar cylinder and could easily read the message.

Julius Caesar used a simple system to communicate with his army. Instead of writing the letter A, he would write D (+3 letters). (See the key below.)

CODE LETTERS:	D	E	F	G	H	I	J	K	L	M	N	O	P	Q	R	S	T	U	V	W	X	Y	Z	A	B	C
MESSAGE LETTERS:	A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	I	J	K	L	M	N	O	P	Q	R	S	T	U	V	W	X	Y	Z

Use the key to help you understand this message:

Computer security systems today are not so different from the one Caesar used. But the keys are much bigger and there are billions of possibilities for each letter or number.

- 1 What does the message say?
- 2 Do you ever use code?

Answers: 1 Caesar was here.
2 Yes, when you send an email to a friend.

Articles

A / an

- 1 Use a / an with singular countable nouns.
a friend, an email, a message
- 2 Use a / an to talk about something that the listener or the reader doesn't know about yet.
The Ancient Greeks sent and received messages using a scytale.
- 3 Use a before a consonant sound and an before a vowel sound.
Note: it is the sound not the letter that is important!
We say a house /ə haʊs/ but an hour /ən 'aʊə/. (Hour begins with a vowel sound.)
We say an umbrella /ən ʌm'brɛlə/ but a university /ə ,ju:nɪ'vɜ:səti/. (University begins with a consonant sound.)
- 4 Use a / an to talk about professions and to describe what something or someone is.
She's a spy.
It's a cylinder made of wood.
It's a secret code.
- 5 A / an can mean every in expressions of time or quantity.
once a day, 100 miles an hour
- 6 We can use the expression What a ...! when we are surprised, angry or excited about something.
What a terrible day!
We use What ...! (with no article) for plural or uncountable nouns.
What terrible weather! What smart shoes!

The

- 7 Use the with singular and plural countable nouns and uncountable nouns.
the officer, the officers, the information
- 8 Use the when the listener or reader knows what the speaker or writer is talking about.
Give me the money. (The speaker or writer does not explain which money he or she is talking about. The listener or reader already knows.)
- 9 Use the when the speaker specifies what or who they are talking about.
the key below, the woman with the curly hair
- 10 Use the with things that are the only ones around us, or that are unique.
the sun, the planets, the sky

- 11 The is used in a number of expressions referring to the world around us or things that we all know about.
the mountains, the city, the universe, the government, the Internet
- 12 The comes before superlatives.
the most popular film, the highest mountain
- 13 Use the when you talk about well-known groups of people.
the police, the Chinese, the young

Quantifiers 1

Anything can happen in the mountains.

You need to be prepared to go mountain climbing. You can't carry everything with you but these are some things that you may need.

Some good maps (no books, there won't be any time for anyone to read!)

Good boots are very important. They should be both strong and comfortable.

Some radios. High in the mountains, no one will hear you shout for help ...

Warm clothes for everyone – it could be very cold at the top.

If it's a really high mountain, take oxygen for each person – there isn't much air high in the mountains. You will need all the air you can get!

Chocolate bars – for some energy. Climbing is hard work.

Accidents happen. Remember that every mountain is dangerous. Don't take any risks! Anything can happen in the mountains.

Quantifiers 1

- 1 Use quantifiers, e.g. some, any, or numbers to say how many or much of something there is.

every night, some mountains, not any books

- 2 Countable nouns are nouns we can count. They have singular and plural forms. Use a or an before a singular noun.

a mountain, an apple, a woman

Use quantifiers or nothing before a plural noun.

some mountains, two apples, women

- 3 Uncountable nouns often refer to materials, liquids, abstract or general concepts. Uncountable nouns are singular – they don't usually have plural forms. Don't use a or an before uncountable nouns – use quantifiers or nothing.

some metal, no rain, freedom, time

Which three things in this list are not in the picture?
jumpers, first aid kit, books, maps, chocolate, rice, oxygen tanks, pens, radios

Answer: books, pens, rice

TIP

Some nouns which are uncountable in English may be countable in your own language. In English, these nouns are uncountable:

accommodation	knowledge	pasta
advice	luggage	traffic
homework	money	transport
information	music	news

Can I have some information?

NOT ... some informations?

The news is bad. NOT The news are...

- 4 Some nouns can be both countable and uncountable, with a difference in meaning.

wood (uncountable = the material), a wood (countable = a small forest) coffee (uncountable = the substance), a coffee (countable = a cup of coffee)
hair (uncountable), a hair (countable = one hair)

Other examples are:

danger	paper	thought
experience	room	time
glass	tea	work
life

- 5 Use the quantifiers all, both, each and every to describe everything in a set.

all the air, both mountains, every night

- 6 Both = A + B. Use both either before or after nouns, but only after pronouns.

Lucy and Roger both like climbing.
OR Both Lucy and Roger like climbing.
They both like climbing.

- 7 Each and every often have the same meaning but we usually use every when we talk about all of a big set, and each when we talk about people or things separately. Only each is possible when there are two people or things.

She has been to every country in Europe.
Wash each shoe in warm water.

TIP

All day answers the question 'How long?'.
Every day answers the question 'How often?'.
It rained all day on Sunday.
I run every day.

- 8 Use some to describe small quantities. We usually use some in statements.

You need some warm clothes.
Some of us want to climb Everest.

TIP

We can use some in questions when we expect the answer 'yes', especially for offers, requests and suggestions.

Fred, do you want some cake?

- 9 We usually use any instead of some in questions and negatives with plural nouns or pronouns, or uncountable nouns.

Have you got any sugar?
There won't be any time to read.

- 10 We can use any in statements to mean 'it doesn't matter which one'.

I'm free all day. Ring me any time.

- 11 Either = A or B. Neither = not A and not B.

Take either bag.
... neither of the maps ...

Don't use a second negative after neither, never, no one, etc.

Neither phone works. NOT Neither phone doesn't work.

- 12 We can use both ... and, either ... or, neither ... nor to join nouns, other kinds of words, phrases and even sentences.

They should be both strong and comfortable.
You can either come with me or stay at home.

- 13 No means the same as not any but is often more emphatic. None of refers to a set.

There are no shops on Everest.
None of them.

- 14 Both, each, some, any, either, neither and none can be pronouns. They can be followed by of.

I bought some. Do you want any?
Some of them know.

- 15 Everyone, everybody, everything, anyone, anybody, anything, someone, somebody, something, no one and nobody are also pronouns. They can be followed by adjectives.

You can't carry everything with you.
There is something strange on that mountain.

- 16 We usually use something, somewhere, somebody and someone in statements. We often use anything, anywhere, anybody, anyone in negative sentences and questions.

Somebody phoned for help.
I can't see anything.

- 17 We can also use pronouns beginning with any- in statements to mean 'all' when it doesn't matter who, what or where.

Anyone can make a mistake.
I'd do anything to be famous.

- 18 Anywhere, nowhere and everywhere are also adverbs.

I'll go anywhere with you.
I looked everywhere.

Practice

My Test answers: 1b 2c 3c 4b 5c

Are our teenagers doing enough exercise?

Being stronger, happier and healthier are just a few of the reasons for doing regular exercise. Yet many teenagers today still do little or no sport.

Do you think you have a good reason not to do sport? Think again!

'My friends don't do sport.'

Be the first! Most people enjoy some kind of sport. You may soon find that your friends are happy to join you.

'I prefer computer games.'

You must be playing too many computer games if you can't find enough time for a bit of sport, too. We think you can do both!

'It's not cool.'

Oh, really? How many footballers do you know who are not cool? Sport can give you a lot of confidence. But not being able to run for the bus ... that's really not cool!

'I don't like being in teams.'

Don't worry too much about the team. There are plenty of activities that you can do by yourself or with a friend.

True or False?

- 1 You have to give up computer games if you want to get some exercise.
- 2 You don't have to be in a team to get some exercise.

Answers: 1 False – you can do both sport and computer games.
2 True – there are plenty of activities that you can do by yourself or with a friend.

Quantifiers 2

Much, many, too much, too many, a lot of, lots of, plenty of, most 1 Use much with singular uncountable nouns and many with plural countable nouns.

much love, many teenagers

2 We usually use much and many in negative sentences and How much ...? and How many ...? in questions.
We don't have much time.
How many footballers do you know?

3 We can sometimes use many in formal statements.
Many teenagers today still do not do enough sport.

But we don't usually use much in statements; we use a lot of or lots of instead.

Sport can give you a lot of confidence.

NOT ...much confidence.

4 Use a lot of or lots of with both singular uncountable nouns and plural countable nouns, mainly in statements. These are usually informal.

Sport can give you a lot of / lots of confidence.

5 We use plenty of with singular uncountable and plural countable nouns in informal statements to mean 'enough' or 'more than enough'.

There are plenty of activities.

6 Too much and too many mean 'more than is reasonable or necessary'.

You must be playing too many computer games.

7 Most (without the) can also mean 'the majority of'.

Most people enjoy some kind of sport.

NOT The most people...

► See Unit 31 for the use of most with superlatives.

(A) little, (a) few, several, a couple of, a bit of, enough

8 These describe smaller quantities.

They do little sport.

There are several new cafés in town.

9 Use a little, little and a bit of with singular uncountable nouns.

Find time for a bit of / a little exercise.

10 Use a few, few, several and a couple of with plural countable nouns.

A few / A couple of / Several friends may want to join you.

TIP

A couple of means 'two or three'.

11 A few and a little mean 'not very many / much, but enough'.

There is a little money. (You can just buy it.)

I have a few friends. (That's fine for me.)

Few and little (without a) mean 'not enough'.

There is little money. (You cannot buy it.)

I have few friends. (I'm lonely.)

12 Use enough before a noun, but after an adjective or adverb.

I haven't got enough time.

I can't reach – I'm not tall enough.

13 We can use many of, much of, (a) little of, (a) few of, most of and several of in front of words like the, these, my, us, them.

These are just a few of the reasons for doing regular exercise.

I don't do a lot of sport with my friends, but some of us play football in the park on Sundays.

14 We can use these quantifiers as adverbs or pronouns (without a noun after them): (too) much, (too) many, (a) little, (a) few, several, enough, a lot of, lots of, plenty of, a couple of, a bit of.

Don't worry too much.

It doesn't cost a lot.

► See Unit 23 for use of some (of).

TIP

Use too + adjective / adverb to mean more than is reasonable, possible, necessary.

I can't do this exercise. It's too hard.

TIP

A bit is more informal than a little.

Practice

A Matthew Robson, from London, wrote a famous report about teenagers in 2009, when he was 15. Complete his report by putting the quantifiers in brackets in the correct places.

¹ Many teenagers between 13 and 14 visit the cinema. ² go once they are 15. This is because they have to pay the adult price. ³ buy the DVD instead. (many / most / not many)

Teenagers listen to ⁴ music – usually while travelling or using the computer. ⁵ teenagers listen to the radio these days. ⁶ teenagers listen to music online or on a personal music player. (most / a lot of / few)

Every teenager can use the Internet – either at home or at school. Only ⁷ teenagers shop online as ⁸ do not have a credit card.

⁹ teenagers read a newspaper regularly – they prefer to find out the news from the Internet. (most / few / a few)

¹⁰ of teenagers have mobile phones. ¹¹ teenagers have expensive phones – in case they are stolen.

¹² teenagers only change their phone on their birthday – when their parents buy them a new one. (99% / most / few)

B Complete the sentences with many, much, too many, too much, How much ...? or How many ...?

- I've got too much soup – I can't eat all this!
- My brother has a lot of computer games, but I don't have .

Haylee15 My mum is telling me to get a job and earn ¹ a bit of / a few money – but I don't want to. What do you think?

Kris01	² Many / Too much teenagers in my class have a job, but it's not just for the money. Even just working ³ a few / a little hours a week will help you grow up!
worriedmum	My teenage son always wants the latest clothes, games and music. It costs ⁴ a lot of / much money. ⁵ How much / How many clothes does one person need? He has a part-time job but he doesn't have ⁶ much / plenty of time to see his friends. I think it's a shame.
sisterT	I work at a restaurant every Saturday. But my boss often asks me to work ⁷ a couple of / a bit of evenings too, perhaps Thursday and Friday. I can't work and study at the same time – it's ⁸ much / too much for me.
2368	Only ⁹ a few / a little teenagers don't work these days, but you're right, Haylee. You need ¹⁰ much / plenty of time to do your homework and you need to get ¹¹ enough / too much sleep. Teenagers who work ¹² a lot of / a lot will not do well in their exams.

MY TURN!

Look at these opinions about teenagers. Write whether you agree with them or not, and add a sentence or two. Use at least one quantifier in your sentences.

- They spend too much money on clothes!
I don't agree. My friends never have enough money to spend on clothes. We only buy a few things when we need them.
- They eat too much junk food!
- Teenagers spend too much time on computers!
- They don't read!
- They go out too much!
- They don't get enough exercise!
- They never walk anywhere!
- They change their mobile phones all the time!

MY TEST!

Circle the correct option.

- Don't worry! You've got time. a plenty of b many c several
- A: I've never had cous cous before. B: Why don't you try? a a little b little c a lot
- his employees have complained about him. a Several b Several of c Several of the
- I had homework this week. a much b a lot c lots of
- Parents want teenagers to have mobile phones and pay for them. a most of b most c too much

Reflexive and reciprocal pronouns

Do it yourself!

She did it herself!

He did it himself!

They did it themselves!

It's fun and easy to do it yourself! For example, see how you can make this beautiful table yourself. Just read our simple instructions.

1 Get yourself a friend – you can help each other.

Take everything out of the box.

Put the four table legs on the big piece of wood. (The legs should be 50 cm from one another.)

Take the screwdriver (Be careful, don't cut yourself!) and fix the legs into the table.

The table should now stand by itself. You've finished! Now you can say, 'I did it myself!' (or 'We did it ourselves!').

See, easy! You get great furniture, you save yourself a lot of money, and even have a good time: many people say the activity itself is fun.

Any questions, phone 737 5226, and I will be happy to answer any of your questions myself.

Michael Morgan

1 Why should people go to this shop?

a It is famous. b The furniture is easy to make. c The furniture is made from special wood.

2 How many pieces does the table have?

a four b five c six

Reflexive and reciprocal pronouns

Reflexive pronouns

1 Reflexive pronouns have the following forms:

I	myself
You	yourself
He	himself NOT hissself
She	herself
It	itself
We	ourselves
You	yourselves
They	themselves NOT theirselves

2 Use reflexive pronouns when the subject and object are the same person.

I work for myself.
Don't cut yourself!

TIP

In English, dress, feel, shave, wash are not usually followed by reflexive pronouns.

I feel uncomfortable. NOT ...feel myself...
I dressed. NOT ...dressed myself.

3 Use a reflexive pronoun to make it clear who / what the pronoun refers to.

Jane bought flowers for herself.
(The flowers are for Jane.)

Jane bought flowers for her.
(The flowers are not for Jane.)

TIP

If a sentence has a preposition of place, the pronoun after the preposition is usually a personal, not reflexive, pronoun.

She took the table with her. NOT ...herself.
I kept the book near me. NOT ...myself.

4 We can use reflexive pronouns for emphasis.

We did it ourselves.
The activity itself is very interesting.

TIP

We can use I myself to give a personal opinion.
I myself completely disagree.*

5 In conversation, we can sometimes use reflexive pronouns instead of personal pronouns. We do this after the prepositions: but, except, as, like or and.

... except ourselves ...
John and myself ...

Reciprocal pronouns

6 By + reflexive pronoun means 'without help'.

The table should now stand by itself.
We got there by ourselves.

7 Reciprocal pronouns (each other and one another) show that people or things act on each other in the same way.

You can help each other.
The legs should be 50 cm from one another.

Note the difference:

We looked at ourselves. (... in a mirror)
We looked at each other. (= She looked at him and he looked at her.)

Reciprocal pronouns have possessive forms (each other's and one another's).

The sisters often borrow each other's clothes.

Prepositions of place, movement and time

We waited in front of a petrol station.

'The chase took place on 5 September at lunchtime. We had a call on the radio from some colleagues. They had seen a black car on CCTV as it went through a red light at a crossroads. We waited in front of a petrol station to see if the car went past us. My colleague went to buy a coffee from the shop at the station. He was only gone for a minute when I saw the black car. "Get in the car!" I called to him.

'The black car drove through a housing estate. It was difficult for us to follow it. The police car is good on motorways, but not over speed bumps! Then the black car drove out of the estate and into the town centre. It was driving very fast. It was very busy in the town centre, and the chase was getting dangerous. We decided to stop. We had to watch the black car disappear into the distance, but it was important that nobody was injured. Just after 3 pm, we had a call on the radio again. They had found the car in a car park. It was a stolen car.'

- 1 Where were the police officers when they saw the car?
- 2 Did they catch the criminals? Why / Why not?

Answers: 1 In front of a petrol station
2 No, because the chase was too dangerous.

Prepositions of place, movement and time

Prepositions of place

1 at, in and on

Use at with a specific point.

at + place, e.g. at the crossroads

at the top / the bottom (of)

TIP

In British English, use at the weekend.

In American English, use on the weekend.

Use in when you are talking about a longer period of time.

in July

in the summer

in 2010

in the morning / afternoon / evening

Use on with days and dates.

+ day, e.g. on Thursday, on Thursday afternoon on + special day, e.g. on New Year's Day

+ date, e.g. on 1 September

8 Some other common prepositions of time are:

after by from ... to / until before during until between for within

9 We can use in to talk about a specific time in the future.

I'll speak to you in an hour. (= an hour from now)

We can also use in ... 's time.

I'm speaking to her in an hour's time.

We use within to mean 'inside a period of time'.

We must finish this within a month. (= before the month has finished)

10 We can use during or in to talk about something which happens in a particular period of time.

Why don't you visit during / in the summer?

Use for to talk about how long something continues.

I stayed at her house for two weeks. NOT ~~... during two weeks.~~

11 Use by or until to mean 'at this time or before'. Use by for a single action and until for an activity which is continuing.

Please complete the form by Friday. (= on or before Friday)

I'll wait for you until 5.00. (= At 5.00 I'll stop waiting.)

12 We do not normally use a preposition of time before this, that, some, each, every, last, next or before the adverb phrases later, today, tonight, tomorrow, the day after tomorrow, yesterday, the day before yesterday.

She left last Monday. NOT ~~... on last Monday.~~

He'll be here the day after tomorrow. NOT ~~... on the day after tomorrow.~~

King Lear Act I, Scene 1 by William Shakespeare (adapted)
King Lear wants to see his three daughters, Regan, Goneril and Cordelia.

King Lear: Bring me my daughters! I will give my country to the daughter who loves me most. First, Regan.

Regan: I love you very much. You always buy wonderful presents for me. You gave me this ring – it cost 500 gold pieces! You are a perfect father.

King Lear: Thank you, Regan! Now, you, Goneril.

Goneril: I love you more. You found a rich husband for me and built us a palace. You have taught me everything in life.

King Lear: Thank you, Goneril! Now you, Cordelia. Show me your love.

Cordelia : I love you, father. I can say no more.

King Lear: What! I will give you another chance. Speak to me, daughter.

Cordelia: I love you as I should, but I will not tell you more than this.

King Lear: Servants, send Cordelia to another country! She is not my daughter now. Throw her to the dogs if she ever returns.

Which daughter, Regan, Goneril or Cordelia ...

- 1 ... is married?
- 2 ... makes King Lear angry?
- 3 ... has an expensive ring?

Answers: 1 Goneril 2 Cordelia 3 Regan

Verbs with two objects

1 Here are two different types of objects:

direct object

Goneril married a millionaire.

indirect object

The king gave her a beautiful ring.

2 Many verbs take an indirect object and a direct object. We can use some of these verbs without to or for before the indirect object. But then the indirect object comes first.

The king told Cordelia a story.

OR The king told a story to Cordelia.

King Lear bought presents for her.

OR King Lear bought her presents.

3 Some verbs take a direct object and an indirect object with to.

Bring me my daughters!

King Lear gave nothing to Cordelia.

Other verbs like this are: lend, offer, pass, promise, read, sell, send, show, teach, tell, throw and write.

TIP

Some verbs, e.g. deliver, describe, explain and suggest, only take a direct object and an indirect object with to.

I explained the problem to Simon.

NOT ...I explained Simon...

Describe your picture to me. NOT Describe me...

4 Some verbs, e.g. build, buy, find, leave and make, take a direct object and an indirect object with for.

The king built a palace for them.

Who bought the ring for Regan?

5 If the direct object is a pronoun, the indirect object comes second, and includes to or for.

I gave them to Bruce. NOT I gave Bruce them.

She made it for her mother. NOT She made her mother it.

If both objects are pronouns, the direct object usually comes first, then to or for before the indirect object.

Bring them to me. NOT Bring them me.

6 A few verbs, e.g. allow, charge, cost, fine and wish, never have to or for with the indirect object.

They didn't allow the prisoner any food.

NOT ...didn't allow to him...

The ring cost the king 500 gold pieces.

NOT ...cost for the king...

7 Say, tell, speak and talk are used differently.

Say is the most common reporting verb. We use to with an indirect object.

He said 'Hello' to him. NOT ...said him 'Hello'...

We use tell to give instructions or information. Tell always has an indirect object without to.

'Go to the king,' they told him. NOT ...they told.

OR ...they told to him.

She tells me a lot of funny stories. NOT ...says me...

Speak can take to. We only use speak about languages and the ability to speak.

She speaks English. NOT ...talks...

Talk can take to. We use talk to mean 'have a conversation'.

Stop talking, please. NOT ...speaking...

Practice

A This is the rest of the story of King Lear. Find the ten verbs which take two objects and underline them.

King Lear gives his country to Regan and Goneril and sends Cordelia to France. Regan and Goneril build their father a small house and wish him luck but they don't allow him any power. They rule England now.

Regan and Goneril soon control everything and they leave nothing for Lear. The King is so angry and disappointed that he goes mad. He walks around the countryside in the wind and rain, telling everyone his story. Lear now understands how poor people live. This teaches Lear the truth about life.

Cordelia has not forgotten her father and brings an army to England to fight her sisters. There is a terrible battle but Regan and Goneril win. Cordelia is killed and Lear dies over her body. Regan and Goneril also die. Lear's terrible mistake costs him his life and his daughters.

B Mattie can't decide what presents to get for her family. Write suggestions using give and buy.

- 1 Give the bone to Spot. / Give Spot the bone.
- 2 Buy the boat for Simon. / Buy Simon the boat.

Prepositions

He was terrible at spelling.

Roald Dahl, who died in 1990, is still one of the world's best-selling authors. His short stories for adults are known for their unexpected endings. Alfred Hitchcock's movie Man from the South was based on a story by Dahl. But Roald Dahl is probably most famous for the dark humour in his very popular children's stories, such as Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, Fantastic Mr Fox and James and the Giant Peach.

Roald was very organised. He always worked for two hours: from 10 until 12 in the morning and from 4 to 6 in the afternoon. He always wrote in pencil and when he started writing for the day, he insisted on having six sharp pencils in a jar by his side.

Roald Dahl enjoyed writing for children. He said that children's jokes still made him laugh – and this was the reason for his success.

In 1925, when Roald was 9, he went away to boarding school. He was very homesick and quite often in trouble. The world now knows that Roald was very clever at making up stories. But instead of seeing a future author, English teachers at his school were very disappointed with his work. Throughout his school life, teachers complained that he was terrible at spelling and that he could not get his thoughts on paper.

- 1 What habits did Roald Dahl have when he was writing?
- 2 What did Roald Dahl's teachers say about him?

Answers: 1 He worked from 10 until 12 in the morning and from 4 to 6 in the afternoon. He always wrote in pencil and insisted on having six sharp pencils by his side.
2 They said he was terrible at spelling and that he could not get his thoughts on paper.

Prepositions

Adjective + preposition

- 1 We use prepositions after some adjectives.

I'm afraid of spiders.

Other examples:

- | | |
|--------------|---|
| about | happy / sad / sorry about , right / wrong about , sure about , worried about |
| as | known as |
| at | good / bad at , clever at , surprised at , shocked at |
| for | famous / known for , ready for , responsible for , sorry for |

| on | keen on , based on |
| to | kind to , married to , similar to , nice to |
| with | angry with (someone) / about (something), bored with , crowded with , disappointed with , pleased with , wrong with |

- 2 In questions that begin with what or who there is no verb or noun after the preposition.

What are you afraid of?
Who are you angry with?

TIP

After a preposition we can use a noun or a verb ending in -ing.

This was the reason for his success.
He was clever at making up stories.

Verb + preposition

- 3 Some verbs take particular prepositions.

He insisted on having six sharp pencils in a jar.

Other examples:

die of / from	spend (money / time) on
prepare for	translate (something) into

- See Unit 17 for more information on and more examples of prepositional verbs.

We often leave out the preposition when spend time is followed by a verb + -ing.

He spends too much time looking out of the classroom window.
NOT ... ~~too much time on looking out~~ ...

Noun + preposition

- 4 Some nouns take particular prepositions after them.

This was the reason for his success.

Other examples:

details of	lack of
example of	reason for
idea of	responsibility for
information about / on	sign(s) of

TIP

We use no preposition after the verb lack.

He lacks confidence. NOT He lacks of confidence.

- 5 We often use the preposition about after nouns that refer to written or spoken text.

It's a story about a fantastic chocolate factory.

Other examples:

a book about	a poem about
a discussion about	a report about
a film about

To talk about the author (e.g. of a book or song) use by.
'Imagine' is a song by John Lennon.

Other prepositions

- 6 Other common prepositions in English are:

about	from
against	of
concerning	regarding
despite	with
for	without

Roald Dahl enjoyed writing for children.

- 7 Some prepositions, e.g. in front of and such as, are more than one word.

He wrote many popular children's stories, such as James and the Giant Peach.

Other examples:

in addition to	by means of
because of	in place of
in case of	in / with regard to
in charge of	in spite of
due to	thanks to
except for	up to
far from	as well as
instead of

Common prepositional phrases

- 8 A number of common expressions and phrases are based on prepositions.

He always wrote in pencil.

Other examples:

by accident	on holiday
above / below average	in my opinion
on average	on my own
in cash / by credit card	on page ...
by chance	on the phone
in danger	on purpose
out of date	on the radio
in fact	by your side
on fire	in time
in a hurry	on time
in love	in trouble
in the newspaper	on TV
by mistake	on the way
by myself

TIP

We can use in to describe what someone is wearing.

The man in the dark glasses.

G Complete the text with the most suitable prepositions.

¹ In the opinion of many people, William Shakespeare is the greatest writer in the English language. He wrote 154 love poems known ² sonnets, but he is most famous ³ his 38 plays which have been translated ⁴ hundreds of languages and performed worldwide. We can divide the plays ⁵ four main types: 'histories' based ⁶ real historical events; 'comedies' like A Midsummer Night's Dream and As You Like It, 'tragedies' such ⁷ Hamlet and Romeo and Juliet, and 'tragicomedies' like The Tempest. The plays are known ⁸ their exciting stories and interesting characters, but they are also full ⁹ interesting ideas and some of the most beautiful poetry ever written in English. People all ¹⁰ the world know Shakespeare's plays, but the funny thing is, ¹¹ spite of his fame, we have very little information ¹² the man himself. We know that he probably lived ¹³ 1564 to 1616, that he got married ¹⁴ Anne Hathaway ¹⁵ the age of 18 and that he had three children. But we don't know much more than that. ¹⁶ fact, we don't even know if Shakespeare wrote all the plays ¹⁷ his own or whether other people helped him.

Adjectives

Totally amazing!

Skateboarding and inline skating are two of the most popular extreme sports in the world. But how easy are they? We gave three beginners a skateboard, a pair of inline skates and some teaching DVDs. Here's what they told us.

SPORT: skateboarding

TASK: do an 'ollie' (An 'ollie' is the most basic skateboarding trick.)

Louie says: 'This is not very easy when you're moving, but it's OK when you are standing. I was really shocked the first time I did it! Totally amazing!'

SKATEBOARDING FACT

Skateboarding started in the 1940s or 1950s. Surfers in California, USA used old, wooden boards with wheels on the bottom.

Arushi says: 'I couldn't do this. It looks fun on the DVD but it's exhausting! And a bit boring because you have to try it again and again.'

SPORT: inline skating

TASK: Skate in a straight line!

Louie says: 'I was quite afraid when I started and I'm surprised I don't have any broken bones! I fell over so many times! But now I'm quite good!'

Erin says: 'I ride a mountain bike, so my balance is very good. I think the DVD was easy to follow and I soon got the idea. It's great! Can I keep the skates?!'

- 1 Who enjoys skateboarding?
- 2 Who manages to inline skate?

Answers: 1 Louie 2 Louie and Erin.

Adjectives

- 1 We usually put the adjective before a noun or pronoun, but after the verb be.

wooden boards

My balance is very good.

- 2 There are a few adjectives which we only use after the verb be or after linking verbs, e.g. afraid, alive, alone, asleep, awake, glad. We usually use ill and well (= healthy) in this way, too.

The boy was afraid. NOT ... the afraid boy ...

The man did not look well. NOT ... a well man ...

- See Unit 21 for use of adjectives after linking verbs, e.g. It looks fun.

-ing and -ed adjectives

- 3 We can sometimes use the -ing form of the verb (e.g. breaking) or the past participle of the verb (e.g. broken) as adjectives.

Surfers ride on the breaking waves. (= the waves that break)

I'm surprised I have no broken bones. (= bones that are broken)

Other examples:

advanced educated retired working ashamed

following sleeping delighted lost

unemployed disabled promising unexpected

4 Some adjectives can end in either -ing or -ed. Many adjectives with -ed endings describe how we feel about something or somebody. Many adjectives with -ing endings describe what or who causes the feeling. They show the effect that something or somebody has on us.
I was exhausted (from skateboarding).
Skateboarding is exhausting.

Other examples:

amazing / amazed	frightening / frightened
annoying / annoyed	increasing / increased
boring / bored	interesting / interested
breaking / broken	pleasing / pleased
confusing / confused	shocking / shocked
depressing / depressed	surprising / surprised
disappointing / disappointed	tiring / tired
exciting / excited	worrying / worried

Gradable and ungradable adjectives

5 We can use very and quite with most adjectives which are 'gradable'.
very good quite afraid

6 We can't use very with adjectives which mean something absolute or extreme (ungradable). We can, however, use words like absolutely, completely or totally with these adjectives.
The 'ollie' was absolutely impossible!
 NOT ...very impossible.

Other examples of ungradable adjectives:

amazing, brilliant, fantastic, great, perfect, wonderful awful, horrible, terrible enormous, huge, tiny boiling, freezing, frozen delicious exhausted starving unique

TIP

We use quite + a + adjective + noun.

She's quite a clever girl. NOT She's a quite clever girl.

► See Unit 32 for more information on adverbs of degree (very, absolutely).

Nouns used as adjectives

8 We can sometimes use nouns like adjectives. They are usually singular in form.

an apple tree NOT ...apples tree
a mountain bike NOT ...mountains bike

9 We can write noun + noun as two words, one word or one word with a hyphen (-). (Hyphens are now not so common.) Check the spelling in a dictionary.

mountain bike skateboard
 (in the) north-east

Order of adjectives

10 When there is more than one adjective before a noun, the adjectives usually go in a specific order.

opinion	lovely, strange size	big, long quality	clever, happy
age	old, recent
shape	round, square
colour	red, black origin	Italian, African
material	paper, stone purpose	climbing, football an old wooden board some lovely white Japanese lights

Adjective + infinitive

11 We can use an infinitive after some adjectives with the verb be.

The DVD was easy to follow.

Other examples:

able	difficult	happy	quick	slow
afraid	easy	keen	ready	sorry
anxious	exciting	lucky	right	surprised
careful	frightened	pleased	shocked	wrong
certain	fun	possible

TIP

Note the difference:

The party was fun! I really enjoyed it.
He's very funny. I laughed a lot at his jokes.

Practice

A Underline all the adjectives or words used as adjectives in the statements below. Write S next to all the sentences which are about skateboarding (in your opinion).

Comparatives

A three-year-old speaks much more fluently.

The development of the early language of children is similar all over the world. In a child's third year, more development is noticeable in his or her language than at any other time.

The obvious difference is that the sentences of a child of three are much longer and more complicated than those of a two-year-old. The sentences of the younger child are mostly limited to two main parts, e.g. got car. A three-year-old might say: Me got lotsa cars like Jimmy (= I've got lots of cars like Jimmy). The two-year-old does not use 'little words' like is, and, in and the. A three-year-old speaks much more fluently, forming sentences such as Mum went in the house with me and Paul.

A child's vocabulary increases suddenly towards the end of the third year. An average child of two and a half might use 500 words, but may use as many as 1,000 words by the age of three.

Children with an elder brother or sister may develop language faster than other children. However, bilingual children and twins may not develop language as quickly. Learning language faster does not mean learning better. There are many cases of children who are almost silent for the first two or three years before becoming confident speakers.

- 1 When does a child's vocabulary often suddenly increase?
- 2 What may help children develop language faster?

Answers: 1 Towards the end of their third year 2 An elder brother or sister

Comparatives

Comparative adjectives

- 1 To make the comparative of one-syllable adjectives, add -er to the adjective.

slow → slower, long → longer, hot → hotter, nice → nicer, old → older

The sentences of a child of three are longer.

TIP

We can say elder or older sister / brother / daughter / son.

This is my elder / older sister.

- 2 To make the comparative of long adjectives (at least two syllables) put more before the adjective.

intelligent → more intelligent hard-working → more hard-working

A three-year-old produces more complicated sentences.

Exceptions:

Two-syllable adjectives ending in -y have -er endings. Change the -y to -i and add -er.

She seems happier now.

The following two-syllable adjectives usually form comparatives with -er: clever, gentle, narrow, quiet, simple.

He's quieter than his sister.

A few comparative adjectives have irregular forms.

good → better

bad → worse

far → farther / further

Her English is better than mine.

TIP

We can use further (not farther) to mean 'extra'.

Here's a further example.

- 3 We can use than after comparative adjectives.
The sentences of a child of three are more complicated than those of a two-year-old.

We can leave this out if the meaning is clear.

The obvious difference is that the sentences of a child of three are much longer.

- 4 We usually use an object pronoun after than.
He's quieter than her.

But in formal language we can use the subject pronoun.

He's quieter than she is / she.

- 5 Use two comparative words with and to show that something is changing all the time.

His language is getting better and better.

She is getting more and more fluent.

Comparative adverbs

- 6 Add more to make the comparative form of most adverbs.

A three-year-old speaks more fluently.

Exceptions:

Many short adverbs, such as early, fast, hard, high, late, long and soon have comparative forms with -er.

She is learning faster.

Some common adverbs have irregular comparative forms.

well → better

badly → worse

far → farther / further

You speak Italian better than me.

Other points

- 7 Use as + adjective / adverb (+ as) to mean 'equal' or 'equally'.

He is just as good-looking as his elder brother.

I'm sure he works as hard as I do / as me.

The second as often comes before possible.

He finished as quickly as possible.

TIP As soon as possible is an expression people often use, particularly in emails. It is sometimes written asap.

Please reply as soon as possible / asap.

- 8 The opposite of more is less. We can use less (than) before long adjectives and adverbs, but not as ... (as) is more common in informal language and with short words.

Twins may not develop language as quickly (as other children). / Twins may develop language less quickly (than other children).

She's not as tall (as her husband).

NOT She's less tall (than her husband).

- 9 Use (not) as many / much (+ noun) as to talk about quantity.

You can have as many (sweets) as you like.

Use as many / much as + number to add emphasis.

A child may use as many as 1,000 words by the age of three.

- 10 Don't use very on its own before a comparative adjective or adverb. Use much, far or a lot. A lot is more informal.

The sentences are much longer. NOT ...very longer.

If you want to say that the difference is small, use a little or a bit. A bit is more informal.

He is a little taller.

- 11 Little, few, much and many also have comparative forms.

little → less few → fewer / less (less is more common, especially in informal language)

much / many → more

More development is noticeable in a child's language (than at any other time).

- 12 Use like or as to say that things are similar. Use like before a noun or pronoun.

She's like her sister.

I've got lots of cars like Jimmy.

Use as before a clause or a prepositional phrase. We often use like instead of as in very informal language.

We've been here before, as I'm sure you remember.

OR ... like I'm sure you remember.

Everything happened very slowly, as in a dream.

OR ... like in a dream.

- 13 Use the same (as) or the same + noun (+ as).

A: I'll have a burger and chips, please.

B: And I'll have the same.

Twins are born to the same mother at the same time.

We use similar (to) to mean 'like, but not exactly the same'.

Her son looks very similar to her at the same age.

E Everybody learns in different ways. Complete the text about different learning styles using the comparative forms of the words in the box.

aware carefully confident easily far fast hard interested logical well

Visual

You learn ¹ better if you use pictures and colour to organise information. You communicate ² with people if you use pictures to get your message across.

Aural

You listen ³ to the music in a film or TV show than other people do. The right kind of music can help you become ⁴ if you are feeling nervous.

Verbal

You are very good with words, both in speaking and in writing. Remembering things is a lot ⁵ if you don't write them down.

Physical

You are ⁶ of your environment than many people. Reading slows you down, you learn ⁷ if you can touch things. Learning to drive should not be a problem!

Mathematical

You may get frustrated with people who are not ⁸ you. You are ⁹ in learning facts than in finding out how something works.

Social

You prefer working with others to working on your own. You like to get ¹⁰ information about something by telling someone your opinion and listening to what they say.

F Complete the sentences using the comparative forms of appropriate adjectives or adverbs.

- 1 A: This city is getting very dangerous.
B: You should move to a safer place.

Superlatives

The most dangerous fish is ...

The smallest fish in the world is the Philippine goby. It is about 1 centimetre long. The biggest fish is the Great White shark, which is 6 metres long. The Great White also weighs the heaviest (over 2,000 kilograms). This is the most well-known shark but there are more than 300 types of sharks.

Probably the most dangerous fish is the stonefish. They swim very close to the bottom of the sea. It is a very bad idea to put your foot on a stonefish! It will be very painful.

The sailfish is the fastest fish with a maximum speed of 110 km an hour. (The quickest that an Olympic swimmer can swim is only about 10 km an hour.) Sailfish are strong but light so they can swim at great speeds.

Fish are great pets. By far the most popular pet is the goldfish. This is the easiest fish to keep at home. Goldfish do not need a lot of space but you should make sure their water is always clean.

Match each fish to the correct description:

- | | |
|-------------------|------------------------------|
| 1 Philippine goby | a It can live in your house. |
| 2 Stonefish | b It is very small. |
| 3 Sailfish | c It can hurt you. |
| 4 Goldfish | d It swims very quickly. |

Superlatives

Superlative adjectives

- 1 To make the superlative of short adjectives, add -est to the adjective.

The sailfish is the fastest fish.

The Marina Trench is the deepest part of the Pacific Ocean.

- 2 To make the superlative of longer adjectives, put most before the adjective.

The most dangerous fish is the stonefish.

What is the most beautiful fish?

- 3 We can use -est with some two-syllable adjectives, e.g. adjectives ending in -y (change the y to an i).

heavy → the heaviest fish

happy → the happiest day of my life

- 4 We usually use the or a possessive pronoun before superlative adjectives.

The most common type of shark.

That was my biggest mistake.

- 5 You can add extra information to superlative adjectives with a to-infinitive clause.

... the easiest fish to keep at home.

The best thing to do.

TIP

We can use superlatives + in with group words like team and world. Only use superlatives + of before plurals and quantifiers.

... the hardest of many difficult days ...

Superlative adverbs

- 6 Add most or least to make the superlative form of most adverbs. We usually do not put the before most and least in informal language.

Which swims (the) most quickly?

Which swims (the) least quickly?

- 7 Many short adverbs, e.g. early, fast, hard, high, late, long, quick and soon have superlative forms with -est: early → earliest, fast → fastest. We usually put the before these superlatives, as with adjectives.

Which fish lives the longest?

Jane gets up the earliest.

- 8 Some superlatives have irregular forms.

bad / badly → worst far → furthest / farthest few → fewest, least (least is more common, especially in informal language) good → best little / few → least much / many → most well → best

Australia has the best beaches.

What is the furthest you have swum?

The Pacific is the ocean with the most fish.

TIP

Old has two superlatives: oldest and eldest. We sometimes use eldest instead of oldest to talk about people in a family.

Her oldest / eldest daughter is a biologist.

Albert is the oldest man in the village.

NOT ... the eldest ...

- 9 We can put adverbs like by far, easily and almost before superlatives. These adverbs come before the or a possessive.

... by far the most popular pet ...

NOT ... the by far most popular ...

... easily their fastest runner ...

NOT ... their easily fastest ...

TIP

We can use very to emphasise short superlatives and first, next and last. The word very goes after the or a possessive.

the very next day

her very best dress

Practice

Swordfish are one of ¹ the biggest types of fish. Some swordfish are almost five metres long. ² part of the swordfish is of course its 'sword', the strange long thing coming out of its face! This sword is for catching its food, other fish. Swordfish are fast and their sword can be dangerous. Only the very ³ sharks and whales try to catch them.

Swordfish don't usually go very far down in the water. ⁴ they swim is about 150 m below the sea, which is ⁵ place to get food. Swordfish also like to be near the coast and ⁶ they are from the coast is about 60 km.

Swordfish are not ⁷ fish but their numbers have gone down because of fishing. We are ⁸ enemy of swordfish. Swordfish are still a popular food in restaurants and some people think they are ⁹ type of fish. If we want to help swordfish, ¹⁰ thing to do is not to eat them!

F What do you think? Which of these is the best and why?

My Test! answers: 1a 2c 3b 4c 5a

He climbs the monument regularly.

What do people do all day?

Here are some jobs you've maybe not thought about ...

Video Game Tester

Some of Arthur Devine's friends would really like his job. Every week Arthur is paid to play video games in an office in New York. He plays video games five days a week. And yes, he can play pretty well!

Dinosaur Duster

Jamie Waters gets up early. He needs to be at the Smithsonian Museum of Natural History in Washington before the visitors get there. Jamie's job is to clean the dinosaurs very carefully. He never touches the bones. He uses a feather duster. Jamie likes the Allosaurus best.

Crack Filler

At Mount Rushmore in South Dakota, the heads of four American presidents have been made from the rock. The four very large heads attract around two million visitors yearly. Roger Prince is definitely not frightened of heights. He climbs the monument regularly; his job is to fill any cracks in the rock.

- 1 Why would Arthur's friends like to have his job?
- 2 Why does Jamie get up early?

Answers: 1 Because he plays video games five days a week. 2 He has to work before the visitors get to the museum.

Adverbs and adverb phrases

- 1 We can use adverbs and adverb phrases with verbs, adjectives, other adverbs and whole sentences.

He gets up early.

The four heads are very large.

He can play pretty well!

Maybe you've not thought about these.*

- 2 Adverbs can be a single word or a phrase.

He climbs the monument regularly.

Every week Arthur is paid to play video games.*

Adverbs of manner

- 3 Adverbs of manner describe how something happens; we usually form them by adding -ly to the adjective.

Jamie works quickly and carefully.

- 4 Some adjectives already end in -ly, e.g. friendly, lonely. We don't add -ly, but say in a ... way.

*He held out his hand in a friendly way. NOT ...friendlily.*

- 5 Some adverbs of manner are the same as adjectives, e.g. early, far, fast, hard, high, late, straight.

He gets up early. He likes the early morning light.

TIP

Hard means 'difficult' or 'with effort'.

It's a hard life. She has to work hard.

Hardly means 'almost not' or 'not at all'.

I could hardly see anything.

It's hardly surprising.

TIP

We can use the adverb well with certain past participles to form an adjective.

She's a well-known actor.

a well-educated person

- 6 Adverbs of manner usually go at the end of the sentence, but can sometimes come in the middle or (for emphasis) at the beginning.

Jamie cleaned the dinosaur bones very carefully.

He carefully cleaned the dinosaur bones.

Carefully he cleaned the dinosaur bones.*

Adverbs of time and place

- 7 Use these adverbs to describe where or when something happens.
... before the visitors get there.
He gets up early.
- 8 Adverbs of time and place usually come at the end of a sentence, but sometimes come at the beginning for emphasis.
I visited Mount Rushmore yesterday. OR Yesterday I visited Mount Rushmore.
- 9 Some common time adverbs, e.g. already, eventually, finally, last and soon, can go before the main verb of the sentence, but after be or an auxiliary or modal verb.
She finally told me. He'll soon finish.
- 10 Time expressions such as every day or every week can go at the beginning or the end of the sentence. Adverbs such as daily, weekly or yearly usually go at the end.
Every week Arthur is paid to play video games.
It attracts around two million visitors yearly.
- 11 Many prepositional phrases of time and place (e.g. at night, in China) function as adverbs and usually go at the end of the sentence. We can put them at the beginning for emphasis.
Arthur is paid to play video games in an office in New York.
At Mount Rushmore in Dakota, the heads have been made from rock.

TIP

If there is more than one adverb or adverb phrase of time, place or manner at the end of a sentence, the order is usually: manner, place, time.

He works hard in the office in the mornings.
(manner + place + time)

Adverbs of frequency

- 12 Adverbs of frequency describe how often we do things, e.g. always, frequently, hardly ever, never, normally, occasionally, often, rarely, regularly, seldom, sometimes, usually.
He can usually be found in the museum.
Frequently, normally, occasionally, often, sometimes and usually can also go at the beginning or at the end of a sentence.
Usually he can be found in the museum.

Sometimes and occasionally can go before be, auxiliaries and modals in negative sentences.

They sometimes don't arrive until late.

Focusing adverbs

- 13 Some adverbs, e.g. even, just, only, mainly, mostly, either (... or), neither (... nor), can be used to put emphasis on a particular part or word of the sentence.
We only want to stay for one night.
We're only here for one night,
We're here for only one night.

Adverbs of certainty and degree

- 14 Adverbs of certainty are obviously, certainly, clearly, definitely, probably, maybe, perhaps.
Maybe you've heard of him.
- 15 We can use adverbs to talk about how much something happens (degree), e.g. a bit, absolutely, almost, completely, extremely, fairly, hardly, highly, more or less, nearly, practically, pretty, quite, rather, really, slightly, somewhat, terribly, totally, very.
He can play video games pretty well.
A bit, pretty and somewhat are more common in informal language.
- 16 We do not use very to describe a verb.
Arthur Devine's friends would really like his job.
NOT ...very like...
- 17 Adverbs of certainty and adverbs of degree usually go before the main verb of the sentence, but after be or an auxiliary or modal verb.
I completely agree.
I'll definitely think about it.
We often use maybe and perhaps at the beginning of a sentence.
Maybe I'll see you then.
We use enough after an adverb or adjective.
I didn't get up early enough.

- 18 In negative sentences, adverbs often come before not.
I certainly will not worry about it.
OR I will certainly not worry about it.

An adverb does not usually come between a verb and the object, or before an -ing form.

Jamie likes the Allosaurus best. NOT Jamie likes best the Allosaurus.

She started working late. NOT She started late working.

- See Units 45 and 46 for adverbs which are used to link sentences, e.g. also, however, then, therefore.

The passive 1

The new metal was called bronze.

The metals copper and tin have been used for thousands of years. Copper was one of the first metals which was discovered by man. Copper is a soft metal and people soon found out that if they heated the copper and mixed it with tin, a much harder metal was produced. The new metal was called bronze. This harder metal could be made into weapons and tools.

Metals can be made better and stronger by mixing two or more of them together. The new mixture is called an alloy. When steel is mixed with certain other metals, stainless steel is formed. Stainless steel is very useful because it is strong and does not rust. Kitchen tools are often made of stainless steel.

Once metals have been taken out of the ground, they will not be replaced. For this reason, many metals today are recycled. In this photo, used metal is being heated. When it is hot, it can be made into new products.

- 1 What is an alloy?
- 2 What alloys are mentioned in the text?

Answers: 1 A mixture of two or more metals
2 Bronze, steel and stainless steel

The passive 1

1 Make the passive with be and the past participle.

present simple	Many metals are recycled .
present continuous	The metal is being heated .
past simple	The new metal was called bronze.
past continuous	While the copper was being heated , the tin was mixed in.
present perfect	These metals have been used for thousands of years.
past perfect	They hadn't discovered bronze yet.
will	The metals will not be replaced .
be going to	It's going to be recycled .
modal verbs + be + past participle	Metals can be made better and stronger.
+ have / has been + past participle	Bronze may have been discovered by accident.

2 Use the passive to focus on the process or result of an action rather than the agent (who or what does the action), or when the agent is 'people in general'.
A harder metal was produced.
The new metal was called bronze.
 (= People called it bronze.)

TIP

There are a few verbs describing events or actions which often use get instead of be in passive sentences. These are common in informal conversation.

get married, get involved, get stuck
He is going to get married in the autumn.

3 We can mention the agent in a passive sentence using the preposition by. We can use with to talk about an object used by the agent. Using by and with often puts greater emphasis on the agent.
It was one of the first metals which was discovered by man.
They broke the rock with a hammer.

TIP

You can find passives in many newspaper reports. The verb be / get is often left out in the headline.

STRANGE ANIMAL FOUND AT STEEL FACTORY
 (= A strange animal was / has been found at a steel factory.)

TIP

Use was / were born NOT is / are born.
My grandfather was born in Australia.

Practice

A Underline the correct option.

- Shellfish open / are opened with a knife.
- Who invented / was invented the Internet?
- This metal is calling / is called steel.
- People have known / have been known about these metals for years.
- The money was collecting / was being collected when we arrived.
- That old coat should throw away / should be thrown away.
- How are you made / do you make bread?
- She has not invited / was not invited to the party.

B Rewrite these sentences using the passive.

- QUIET AREA. We do not allow mobile phones.
QUIET AREA. Mobile phones are not allowed.
- Someone may request ID.
- You must show tickets at the door.
- If you leave a bag in the station, someone will take it away and someone may destroy it.
- We do not accept credit cards.
- Please do not make too much noise, or we will ask you to leave.
- You must wear hard hats.
- You should carry ID at all times.

C Complete the text, using the words in brackets in an appropriate form of the passive.

Kurilpa Bridge is a 470-metre-long footbridge in Brisbane, Australia. The bridge has 84 solar panels which supply the power which is needed for the lights on the bridge at night. Over 36,000 people are thought to use the bridge every week.

Every month we look at buildings which support the environment. Here are three buildings which we think deserve to be mentioned this month.

The Eden Project in south-west England has been designed as a centre to educate the public about the environment. A number of domes contain plants from all around the world. Eden's designers didn't want the domes to be made out of glass but instead had them built out of a new and lighter material. The opening of the Eden Project in 2001 was a great success and thousands of visitors now enjoy being welcomed at the centre every week.

The Terminus Hoenheim-Nord is in Strasbourg, France. This tram station is the work of architect Zaha Hadid. The new tramline in Strasbourg has been created to reduce pollution in the city. Zaha Hadid was given The Pritzker Prize for Architecture in 2004.

In what ways do these projects support the environment?

Answer:
Kurilpa bridge has solar panels which supply power.
The Eden Project educates the public about the environment.
The new tramline in Strasbourg reduces pollution in the city.

The passive 2

- 1 Verbs with two objects, e.g. bring, give, buy, allow, have two passive forms.

They gave her sister the prize. (active)

She was given the prize. (passive)

The prize was given to her. (passive)

- ▶ See Unit 27 for more verbs which take two objects.

- 2 Verbs which take a to-infinitive are followed by to be + past participle in the passive.

They didn't want the domes to be made out of glass.

We can use the passive to-infinitive after some adjectives.

I was very happy to be invited.

- ▶ See Unit 29 for a list of adjectives which are followed by the infinitive.

- 3 Verbs which take the -ing form are followed by being + past participle in the passive.

They enjoy being welcomed.

TIP

We can use some (passive) past participles as adjectives. Many of these describe feelings, e.g. bored, disappointed, excited, interested, worried.

I was bored by the film.

- ▶ See Unit 29 for more past participle adjectives.

- 4 Passive forms of believe, expect, feel, report, say, think, understand are common in reports, particularly where the speaker is not necessarily agreeing with the statement or there is some uncertainty about the report.

Over 36,000 people are thought to use the bridge every week.

It is thought that over 36,000 people use the bridge ...

There were thought to be over 36,000 people using the bridge ...

- 5 We use have + object + past participle to talk about getting someone else to do something for us.

The designers had the domes built out of a new material.

We also use have + object + past participle to talk about something (usually bad) that has been done by someone else.

I had my mobile phone stolen.

- 6 In informal language we can replace have + object + past participle with get + object + past participle.

I got my TV fixed.

I got my mobile phone stolen.

- 7 Need + to be + past participle has a passive meaning but we can also use need + -ing.

The roof needs to be fixed.

The roof needs fixing.

Zero, first and second conditionals

1 There are two parts to conditional sentences.

zero conditional	if + present simple	present simple	If you're tired of London, you're tired of life. first conditional	if + present simple	will + infinitive without to	If you love your job, you will never have to work again.
second conditional	if + past simple	would + infinitive without to	Spring wouldn't be so nice if we didn't have winter.

TIP We often use If I were you ... I would (not) ... for advice and suggestions.
If I were you, I'd wear the blue skirt.

8 We can use other modals instead of will.
If you think you can, you can.
It might break if you did that.

► See Unit 37 for variations on conditionals.

9 We can use unless to mean if ... not in the zero and first conditional. You can't use unless before a past tense.
I run every morning if it isn't cold. OR I run every morning unless it's cold.
I will be disappointed if he doesn't come.
NOT ~~I would be disappointed unless he came.~~

10 We can use as / so long as and provided / providing (that) with a similar meaning to if.
I don't care as long as it's free.
It's easy providing you read the instructions.

11 We can talk about imaginary situations with imagine (that) and suppose / supposing (that) in separate sentences.
Imagine that you were famous. Would you be happy?
Suppose she said no. What would we do then?

TIP Use What if ...? for suggestions and speculations. A present tense sounds more certain than a past tense.
What if we drive there?
What if we found life on Mars?

► See Unit 46 for if vs. in case, and other linking words.

2 When if comes at the beginning of the sentence, we need a comma in the middle.

If you think you can't, you're right.

3 Use the zero conditional to talk about things that are generally true.

I go to bed early if I don't feel well.
If it rains, you get wet.

4 Use the first conditional to talk about something that we think is possible in the future, and its result.

If I see the book, I'll buy it.
Will you tell me if Anna phones?

5 Both parts of a first conditional sentence talk about the future, even though a present tense is used after if. We do not usually use will after if.

If you read this book, you will learn many new things.
NOT ~~If you will read this book...~~

6 Use the second conditional for events and situations which are unlikely, imaginary or impossible in the present and future.

What would you do if there was a fire? (something unlikely)
If I walked across a river, the newspapers would say ... (something impossible)

7 We often use if + were instead of was after the pronouns I, she, he, it and singular nouns. This is more common in formal language and American English.

I wouldn't be surprised if it were true.
If your father were here, he would be shocked.

-, I always feel happy.
- If it was my friend's birthday,
-, I'll tell all my friends.
- If today was Saturday,
- unless you study hard.
- I can stay out late on Saturdays as long as

D Write sentences in the second conditional about the story. Look at the next sentence to find out what verb to use.

It is late at night. You are in bed. You hear a strange noise.

- If I heard a strange noise, I'd get up.
You get up. The window is open.
- If the window was open, I'd close it.
You close the window. You feel frightened.

You fall asleep. You hear your alarm clock.
You wake up. It was all a dream!

E Circle the correct option.

What ¹... life be like if we didn't have paper books? Imagine if there ²... no bookshops or libraries. Some people think that this is the future if the use of electronic books ³... . Paper is heavy, expensive and bad for the environment; you need a lot of trees if you ⁴... to make all those books.

Electronic books are also more convenient, ⁵... you have the hardware. For example, ⁶... you don't know a word, you can find the translation very quickly. Also, you can download new books very easily. So, is this the end of paper books?

Maybe not. Some people just prefer paper books. This is not surprising. Suppose you ⁷... in front of a computer screen for eight hours. ⁸... you like to look at another screen if you were relaxing at home? Also, paper books are probably better for your eyes. ⁹... you want to get bad eyes, don't spend too much time looking at computer screens.

The future will tell if this ¹⁰... right, but there will probably always be a place for paper books like this one.

Third conditional, I wish, If only

I wish I had heard those songs.

My name is Adèle. I'm 19. My favourite time in history is the 1920s. I wish I had been a young woman in the USA then. Women got the vote and enjoyed more freedom. If I had lived in the 1920s, I would have worn a flapper dress and my hair would have been short. I love jazz music from that time – from New Orleans and New York – I wish I had heard those songs when they were new and exciting! If I'd been young then, I'd have danced like they do in the musical Chicago and I'd have said that everything was just 'swell'!

My name is Ruth. It is 1924 and I am a farmer's wife in the south of the USA. I wish we had more money to buy new clothes. Times are hard and I wish I were not living on a farm. Our hut does not have electricity or water. My husband cannot sell the cotton that he has grown. If only we could sell the cotton, we would be able to find somewhere better to live.

- 1 What does Adèle like about the 1920s in the USA?
- 2 Were the 1920s good years for Ruth? Why / Why not?

Answer: 1 The fashion, the music and the new freedom for women.
2 No. She was a farmer's wife in the south of the USA. Her husband could not sell his cotton.

Third conditional, I wish, if only

Third conditional

1 Use the third conditional for events in the past which did not in fact happen.
If I had lived in the 1920s, I would have worn a flapper dress. (She didn't live in the 1920s and didn't wear this dress.)

2 Make the third conditional with two clauses

third conditional	if + past perfect	would + have + past participle	If I had lived in the 1920s, my hair would have been short.
-------------------	-------------------	--------------------------------	--

3 The clause that begins with if can come first or second in the sentence. When it comes first, we use a comma after it.
If I had lived then, I'd have said everything was just 'swell'.
I would have danced all the time if I'd been young then.

TIP In third conditional sentences, we can shorten both had and would to 'd
If I'd lived in the 1920s, I'd have worn a flapper dress.

I wish and if only

4 Use I wish or if only with the past perfect to talk about regrets.
I wish / If only I had heard those songs when they were new. (= It's a pity that I didn't hear those songs then.)

TIP After wish, we sometimes use were instead of was.
I wish I was / were taller.

5 Use I wish or if only with the past tense to talk about events and situations which you would like to be true now.
I wish we had more money. (We don't have a lot of money.)
If only we could sell the cotton. (We can't sell the cotton.)

TIP wish or if only?
Wish is usually used with I (I wish ...) and is more common than If only ....
If only expresses a stronger regret.

Practice

A Underline the correct option.

- I wish I had my own room. (I have / don't have my own room.)
- He wishes he had got up earlier. (The man got up late / early.)
- I wish I was good at dancing. (I'm bad / good at dancing.)
- If I'd taken the train, I would have got there on time. (I took / didn't take the train. I got / didn't get there on time.)
- I wish my cousins didn't live so far away. (My cousins live far away / near.)
- I wish I could say sorry. (I can / can't say sorry.)
- There wouldn't have been an accident if she had driven more carefully. (She drove / didn't drive carefully. There was / wasn't an accident.)
- I wish I hadn't given the company my phone number. (I gave / didn't give the company my phone number.)
- If they hadn't helped me, the job would have taken a long time. (They helped / didn't help me. The job took / didn't take a long time.)

E Read the short biography of F Scott Fitzgerald and, in your notebook, write six regrets that you think he might have had for himself or his wife.

F Scott Fitzgerald was a writer in the 1920s. His novels are about the colourful lives of the young rich in the USA.

F Scott Fitzgerald started writing as a schoolboy. His first and most well-known novel, The Great Gatsby, was published in 1920. The novel was a big success. Fitzgerald and his new wife, Zelda Sayre, were immediately famous but they were soon in financial trouble.

Fitzgerald's later novels did not make as much money as the first. He often had to stop work on his novels and write short stories for magazines in order to make money. He did not particularly enjoy writing the short stories. Fitzgerald's marriage with his wife was very difficult. Many people consider that he did not write as much as he could because of this. Zelda became very ill later in life and spent long periods of time in hospital.

Fitzgerald died believing that he had been a failure. However, people consider him to be one of the best writers of the 20th century. It is a great pity that he did not see the success his novels later found.

Example: I wish I had written more.

F Sometimes things can have unexpected results. Write third conditional sentences about the following situations.

1 I broke my leg in a football match. While I was in hospital I started writing a book. It's just been published and is very successful.

If I hadn't broken my leg, I wouldn't have become a successful writer.

2 My friend told me a good place to buy a new mobile phone, but I couldn't find the shop. Instead I found a different shop and managed to get a really good phone for half the price!

3 It was an icy night and I was driving home. The car got stuck. Luckily, a really nice man stopped and pushed the car for me. He's now my husband!

4 I didn't want to go to college when I left school, so I travelled for a year instead. When I was in China, I was really interested in the history. When I came back I started studying History at college and I really love it.

5 My boss told me to leave my job. On the way home I decided to start my own business. My business is doing really well.

6 My parents didn't have enough money to buy a house in the city. We moved to the country instead. Now I love it here and have lots of new friends.

7 I didn't pass my Maths exam. I took the exam again and studied really hard. I found out I really liked Maths and now I want to be a Maths teacher.

MY TURN!

Write two things that you are glad happened as they did, and two that you are sorry happened as they did.

Example: I'm glad I came to live here. If I hadn't come to live here, I wouldn't have met all my great friends.

Write about some things you would like to have or to be able to do.

Example: I'm not good at singing. I wish I could sing.

MY TEST!

Circle the correct option.

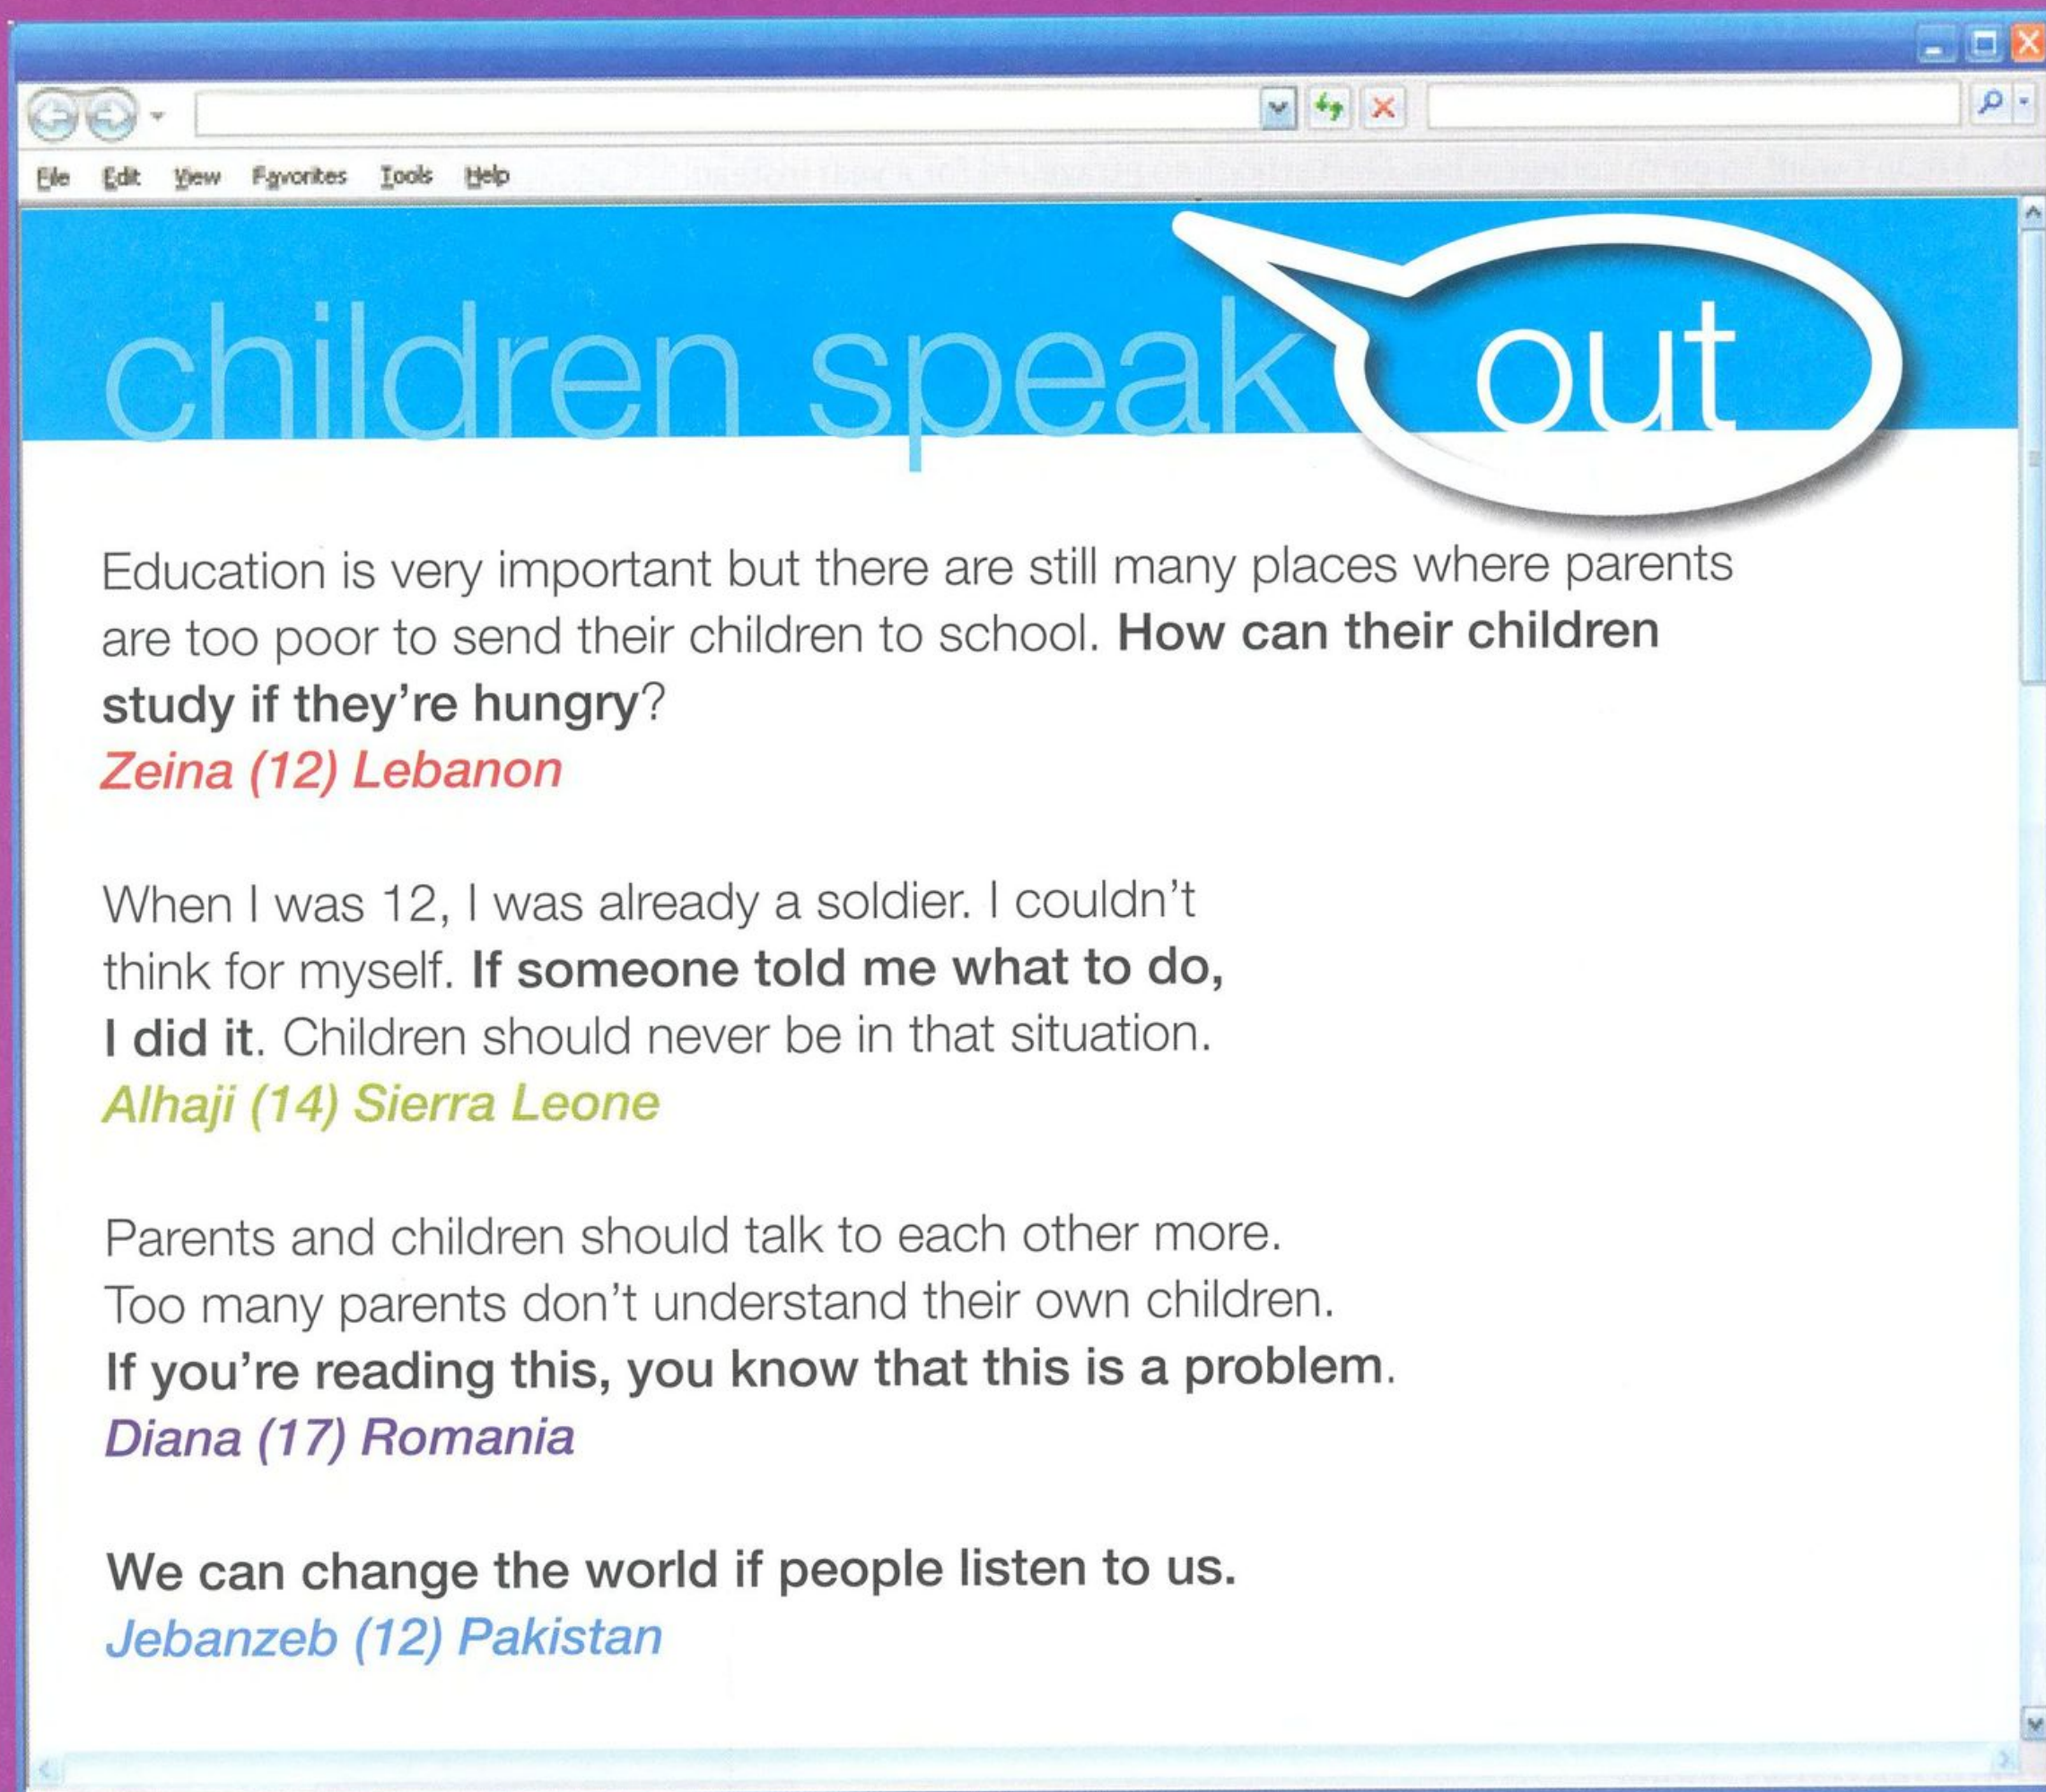

- 1 I wish I meet people with the same interests. a could b can c -
- 2 I wish I been born 100 years ago. a would b had c have
- 3 I would have loved Fitzgerald's books if I lived then. a had b have c would have
- 4 If he hadn't loved his wife, he have left. a had b hadn't c 'd
- 5 I wish I working on a farm. a am not b not c wasn't

Variations on conditionals

We can change the world if people listen to us.

Some young people live in difficult situations. Here are what some young people say on a website.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the title 'children speak out'. The browser's address bar is empty, and the menu bar includes 'File', 'Edit', 'View', 'Favorites', 'Tools', and 'Help'. The website content features a blue header with the text 'children speak out' in white, where 'out' is enclosed in a white speech bubble. Below the header, there are three testimonials:

Education is very important but there are still many places where parents are too poor to send their children to school. How can their children study if they're hungry?
Zeina (12) Lebanon

When I was 12, I was already a soldier. I couldn't think for myself. If someone told me what to do, I did it. Children should never be in that situation.
Alhaji (14) Sierra Leone

Parents and children should talk to each other more. Too many parents don't understand their own children. If you're reading this, you know that this is a problem.
Diana (17) Romania

We can change the world if people listen to us.
Jebanzeb (12) Pakistan

Who thinks ...

- 1 communication between children and parents could be better?
- 2 all children should go to school?

Answers: 1 Diana 2 Zeina

Variations on conditionals

- 1 Different combinations of tenses are possible in conditional sentences. Here are some possible patterns.

If + past simple + past simple

If someone told me something, I did it.

If + present simple + present continuous

If she says that, she's not telling you the truth.

If + present continuous + present continuous

I'm not going outside if it's raining.

If + present continuous + present simple

If you're reading this, you know that this is a problem.

If + past simple + present perfect

If Jack really did that, he's made a big mistake.

- 2 Modals other than will may be in conditional sentences.

How can their children study if they're hungry?

If you want to discuss similar topics, you should go ...

- 3 We don't usually use if + will.

If you see him tomorrow ... NOT If you will ...

We don't usually use if + would

If you go into town ... NOT If you would ...

We can use if + will / would in sentences which are not conditionals, e.g. requests.

If you will / would sit down, please.

- 4 We can use if + should and / or happen to when we want to show that something is unlikely.

If the situation should change, I will write to you.

Buy some if you happen to find them.

- 5 We can use if + present + imperative.

If you need more information, contact the office.

- 6 We can use if it + wasn't / weren't / hadn't + for to show that one thing changes the situation completely.

If it wasn't for my bad leg, I could play in the match.

I would never have joined the army if it hadn't been for my uncle.

- 7 Instead of using if, we can put had, should or were + pronoun / noun first in the sentence. This is more formal.

Had I realised the danger, I would not have given her my number.

Should your temperature increase, phone a doctor at once.

TIP

We can use then in the main part of a conditional sentence for emphasis.

If you don't understand, then ask me.

As long as your parents know, then that's all right.

Practice

- A Tick the sentence closest in meaning to the conditional.

- If it's 11 o'clock, Sandra is sleeping.

Interviewer: I'm here at UNICEF today to interview John Edwards about the work he does. Welcome, John. If you ¹ will sit down, please. First, what does UNICEF actually do?

John: The most important thing is giving information. We ² do anything if people don't know what is happening. By people, I mean everyone: children, parents, teachers, politicians, you and me If people knew the terrible things happening to children around the world, they ³ be shocked.

Interviewer: For example?

John: Many young children have to work. If it ⁴ for the money they make, their families would be hungry. I ⁵ give you many examples, if you have time, of the difficult and dangerous jobs which some children do.

Interviewer: If you ⁶ a child in that situation, what should you do?

John: Contact us. In most countries such work is illegal. ⁷ there be an accident, the employer, and maybe parents, would be in a lot of trouble. ⁸ I a politician, I would make very strong laws to stop young children working. Also, if you ⁹ to hear of stories like this, contact us, and the police.

Interviewer: Thank you, John. If you want to know about the work of UNICEF, ¹⁰ go to their website.

Indirect statements

They said their son was flying.

When Mr and Mrs Green phoned the police and said that their six-year-old son was flying away in a balloon, it became big news. Their story was that Mr Green had made a balloon in his garden and that their son, Kevin, had got inside the balloon and flown away.

The police followed the balloon for three hours. When the balloon came down, they found nobody inside. The police thought that this was very strange and started to look for Kevin. They found him in his parents' garage. Kevin said he had been hiding.

Many people now believed that the whole balloon story was false. Newspapers wrote that Mr and Mrs Green (ex-actors) had done this to get on TV. Finally, Mr Green admitted that it was all a joke. He said he was sorry and promised that he wouldn't do anything so stupid again. The police didn't think it was very funny – it had cost two million dollars to try and save the boy.

Put the events in order.

- a The police found Kevin.
- b Mr Green said, 'I'm sorry.'
- c The police found the balloon.
- d Mr Green phoned the police.
- e Mr Green made a balloon.

Answers: 1e 2d 3c 4a 5b

Indirect statements

- 1 If the main verb is in the present, there is no change of tense in the indirect statement.

Mr Green says that he is sorry.

My opinion is that it was a big mistake.

- 2 When the main verb is in the past, the verb in the indirect statement usually moves into the past.

direct statement		indirect statement
present simple	→	past simple
'It seems strange.'		They thought that it seemed strange.
present continuous	→	past continuous
'I am watching TV.'		She said that she was watching TV.
past simple	→	past perfect
'I made a balloon.'		He told police that he had made a balloon.

'I've been hiding.'		He said that he had been hiding.
can	→	could
'I can fly a balloon.'		Mrs Green said that she could fly a balloon.
will	→	would
'I won't do this again'		He repeated that he wouldn't do this again.
may	→	might
'We may be famous!'		The Greens thought that they might be famous.
be going to and have to	→	was / were going to and had to
'We have to find the boy.'		They knew that they had to find the boy.

TIP

Past modal verbs (would, could, etc.) do not change.

The police said that they would like an apology.

- 3 The verb in the indirect statement does not need to change if the information is still true or relevant now.

Mr Green was sure that balloons are safe.

People did not know that the earth is round.

TIP

Indirect statements can show what people think, not what they actually say.

She didn't believe that it was possible.

Hiding in the garage!

- 4 Indirect statements can also come after adjectives and nouns.

It's sad that some people will do anything to get on TV.

I love the idea that he was hiding in the garage!

- 5 That often links the main verb of the sentence to the indirect statement. That can be left out, especially in conversation and informal language.

The police didn't think (that) it was funny.

It is lucky (that) Kevin didn't get into the balloon.

- 6 Pronouns and time and place expressions may change for indirect statements.

we → they now → then

next week → the week after this morning → that morning

tomorrow → the next day

ago → before

here → there

'We will do it tomorrow.' → They said they would do it the next day.

'I can do it now.' → He said he could do it then.

- 7 Many verbs which introduce indirect statements are followed by to-infinitives, e.g. advise, agree, ask, promise, tell.

Kevin agreed to hide in the garage and promised not to tell the police.

Indirect questions

If you are wondering why glaciers are interesting ...

Welcome to my blog on glaciers! If you are wondering why glaciers are interesting, read this blog.

Maria (14, Spain) asks what a glacier is.

A glacier is a large piece of moving ice. Glaciers cover 10% of the Earth's surface.

Kylie (13, New Zealand) asks the question how quickly glaciers move.

Fairly slowly, usually less than 100 metres a year. Big glaciers move more quickly: some glaciers in Greenland move more than one kilometre a year.

Ming-Ji (13, Korea) wants to know if icebergs are glaciers.

No, icebergs are pieces of glaciers (sometimes very big pieces!) which break off from glaciers into the sea.

Djalma (15, Brazil) asks why glaciers are important.

Glaciers give us 75% of our fresh water. They are very important for the climate. If the Antarctic glaciers melt, sea water will rise 65 metres.

Henry (14, Tanzania) asks whether there are any glaciers in Africa.

Yes, in some mountains. There are also glaciers on Mars!

True or False?

- 1 Greenland has some big glaciers.
- 2 Glaciers are made from sea water.

Answers: 1 True 2 False

Indirect questions

- 1 For indirect questions, the word order is question word + subject + verb. There is no auxiliary do or question mark.
Maria asks what a glacier is. NOT ...what is a glacier?
I wonder who Djalma saw. NOT ...who did Djalma see?
- 2 If the main verb is in the present, there is no change of tense in the indirect question. When the main verb is in the past, the verb in the indirect question usually moves into the past.
A lot of people wonder why I am interested in glaciers.
I asked my dad why he looked so sad.
NOT ...why he looks...
We wondered where she had gone.
NOT ...where she has gone...
- ▶ See Unit 38 for more information on the change of tenses in indirect speech.
- 3 Indirect questions can also come after nouns and adjectives.
Kylie asks the question how quickly glaciers move.
It is uncertain who did it.
- 4 For indirect yes / no questions, use if or whether.
Ming-Ji wants to know if / whether icebergs are glaciers.
Henry asks if / whether there are any glaciers in Africa.

- 5 Usually, if and whether are both possible.
I don't know if / whether it is true.

But we can use only whether after prepositions and before to-infinitives.

It's a question of whether we need it. NOT ...of if...
Claire wondered whether to phone him.
NOT ...if to phone...

TIP

We say whether or not, NOT if or not.

I asked whether or not that was OK.

- 6 If the subject of the indirect question is the same as in the main part of the sentence, we can use a to-infinitive.
Maria doesn't know where to see glaciers.
He asked what to write.

TIP

We say know how to, NOT know to.

Scientists don't know how to stop climate change.

NOT ...know to stop...

A hundred years ago, a team of explorers found a glacier in Antarctica. They weren't sure ¹..., so they named it the Mertz Glacier after the explorer Xavier Mertz. Although the Mertz Glacier is one of the biggest glaciers in the world, many people can't even say ²...

Xavier Mertz (1883–1913) was part of a team which wanted to find out ³... Antarctica. There weren't even any maps of Antarctica at that time. They needed to know ⁴... this very big continent, and ⁵... possible to get from Antarctica to South Australia.

In November 1912, Mertz and two men, Ninnis and Mawson, were on a long difficult journey across the ice. There was a scream. At first, Mertz didn't understand ⁶... Then he saw that Ninnis had fallen through the ice. Even worse, he had fallen with most of their food. Mertz had no idea ⁷... and asked Mawson ⁸... to wait for help. Mawson told him they had to continue.

The two men were soon tired and hungry. On 7 January, 100 miles from their camp, Mertz asked ⁹... He wasn't sure ¹⁰... Sadly, Mertz soon died. Mawson managed to get back to camp safely and went on many more Antarctic journeys.

Defining relative clauses

The companies who connect people to the Internet

Do you know your ISPs from your USBs?

Test your computer knowledge by matching the computer words to their definitions.

- 1 The companies who connect people to the Internet are called s.
- 2 A  is something we use to move around the computer screen.
- 3 A  is what you use to move photos from your digital camera to your computer.
- 4 An  is a picture of yourself or a favourite character whose picture you use. The picture represents yourself in games and discussions on the Internet.
- 5 A  is a small computer program which is designed to damage your computer files.
- 6 A  is someone who uses or changes the information in other people's computer systems.
- 7 A  protects your computer. It stops information which you don't know about coming into your computer.

Answers: 1 ISP 2 mouse 3 USB cable 4 avatar 5 virus 6 hacker 7 firewall

Defining relative clauses

- 1 A relative clause gives us information about a noun. A defining relative clause says which person, thing, animal or idea we are talking about.

A hacker is someone who uses or changes the information in other people's computer systems.

- 2 Many relative clauses begin with the relative pronouns who, which or that.

Use who to refer to a person. Use which to refer to a thing, an animal or an idea.

Use that instead of who or which in informal language.

A computer programmer is a person who / that designs computer programs.

A virus is a small computer program which / that is designed to damage your computer files.

TIP

We can use who or which to refer to groups of people.

The companies who / which connect people to the Internet are called ISPs.

- 3 We can leave out the relative pronouns who, which or that when they are the object of the relative clause.

This is something (that) we use to move around the computer screen.

- 4 If there is a preposition, it usually goes at the end of a relative clause.

... information (which) you don't know about ...

In more formal language, we can use the preposition directly in front of the relative pronoun.

... information about which you know nothing ...

- 5 When the relative pronoun is the object of the relative clause, or comes after a preposition, we do not need to repeat it.

This is something that we use to move around the computer screen.

NOT This is something that we use it to move ...

The teacher (who) I was telling you about.

NOT The teacher who I was telling you about her.

- 6 If who comes after a preposition or is the object of the relative clause, we can use whom instead. This is only used in more formal language.

... the woman to whom the prize was given ...

... someone whom Theo had met years before ...

- 7 Use when or where as relative pronouns after nouns which refer to a time or a place. We can often use a preposition + which with a similar meaning.

The room where the exam is taking place is ready.

(= the room in which the exam is taking place)

I don't like days when it gets dark early.

- 8 Use why (or that) after the noun reason.

That's the reason why / that I came.

- 9 Use what to mean 'the thing(s) which'.

A USB cable is what you use to move photos from your digital camera to your computer. (= the thing which you use)

- 10 Use whose + noun to mean of whom, of which. Whose can refer to people, animals or things.

We are an organisation whose aim is to make computer training available to everyone. (= the aim of which)

TIP

We can often use with instead of:

– a relative clause with whose

a friend whose brother lives nearby = a friend with a brother who lives nearby

– a relative clause using who / which and have an old computer which has a lot of problems = an old computer with a lot of problems

- 11 There is no comma before a defining relative clause.

The companies who connect people to the Internet are called ISPs.

NOT The companies, who connect people to the Internet are called ISPs.

Non-defining relative clauses

'I thought it was dumb, which shows he's smarter than I am!'

When Mike Hayes started university at Illinois in the United States, he found he did not have enough money to pay for his studies. Hayes came up with an idea. He wrote to Bob Greene, who was a famous writer for the Chicago Tribune, and asked every reader of the letter to send him a penny. The newspaper has millions of readers, many of whom sent in a penny. Money was received from every state in the USA, as well as Mexico, Canada and the Bahamas, where the paper is also read. Eventually, Mike raised $28,000, which was the amount he needed for his studies. Hayes, who went on to get his degree in food science, says the idea worked because 'I didn't ask for a lot of money. I just asked for money from a lot of people.' Hayes's father, Bill, says, 'When Mike first told me about his idea, I thought it was dumb, which shows he's smarter than I am!'

- 1 Why did Mike Hayes write to the Chicago Tribune?
- 2 Was the idea dumb?

Answers: 1 To ask all the readers for a penny. 2 No

Non-defining relative clauses

- 1 A non-defining relative clause gives us additional information about a person, thing, animal or idea.
Hayes, who went on to get his degree in food science, says the idea worked.
▶ See Unit 40 for information on defining relative clauses.
- 2 If we take the non-defining relative clause out of a sentence, the sentence will make sense without it.
Hayes, ~~who went on to get his degree in food science~~, says the idea worked.
We can use brackets () or dashes – ... – instead of commas (,) before and after non-defining relative clauses.
Hayes (who went on to get his degree in food science) says the idea worked.
- 3 Use commas with a non-defining relative clause.
Eventually, Mike raised $28,000, which was the amount he needed for his studies.
Bob Greene, who was a famous writer for the Chicago Tribune, asked every reader of the letter to send a penny.
- 4 Who, whose, which, where and when are common relative pronouns in non-defining relative clauses.
Money was received from every state in the USA, as well as Mexico, where the paper is also read.
- 5 We cannot leave out the relative pronoun in non-defining relative clauses.
Bob Greene, who he wrote to, thought it was a great idea. NOT Bob Greene, he wrote to...
- 6 We can use which to refer to a whole statement.
I thought the idea was dumb, which shows he's smarter than I am! (which refers back to I thought the idea was dumb)

TIP

We do not use that as a relative pronoun in a non-defining clause.

Bob Greene, who was a famous writer for the Chicago Tribune, asked every reader to send Mike a penny. NOT Bob Greene, that was a famous writer for the Chicago Tribune, asked...

- 7 After words like all, both, many, neither, some, first, last, numbers and superlatives (e.g. the best, the worst), we can use of which or whom.
The newspaper has millions of readers, many of whom sent in a penny.
There are a number of newspapers in Chicago, the most popular of which is probably the Chicago Tribune.
- 8 If there is a preposition, it usually goes at the end of a relative clause.
Bob Greene, who he wrote to, thought it was a great idea.

In more formal language we can use the preposition directly in front of the relative pronoun, as in defining relative clauses.

She did not mention John again, for which I was grateful.

- 9 If who comes after a preposition or is the object of the relative clause, we can use whom instead. This is only used in more formal language.
The people, to whom the land actually belonged, were asked to leave.

E Rewrite this story, changing the underlined sentences into relative clauses.

I love this story. I think about it when things are difficult. It is a true story. The beginning of the film Good Will Hunting is based on it. The story is about a young maths student, George Dantzig. He studied at the University of California, Berkeley, in the USA. One day Dantzig arrived late for a class and copied down two maths problems from the board. He thought these were for homework. The problems took him longer than usual to solve. Dantzig found both of them difficult. A few weeks later he was woken early by someone at the front door. Dantzig had forgotten all about the homework now. He opened the door to find his teacher with the homework in his hand. His teacher was very excited. The homework had in fact been two examples of famous unsolved maths problems and Dantzig had just solved them! Dantzig believed this was an example of positive thinking. Dantzig's father was a mathematician. If he had known these were unsolved problems, he would never have been able to do them!

I love this story, which I think about when things are difficult.

The man went back to pick up all the apples. It took a long time. Night fell and it was dark when the man finally got to the town. He saw a hotel, ⁸, and went in.

The boy, ⁹, was staying there too.

'Ah,' said the boy. 'I told you to go slowly!'

F Add more information to this story using relative clauses.

One day a man was taking some apples to the town, ¹ which was several kilometres away .. He put all the apples into bags on his donkey, ² .. On the way he met a boy, ³ .., and his donkey. 'How long will it take to get to the town?' asked the man, ⁴ .. 'If you go quickly, it will take you a long time,' said the boy. 'But if you go slowly, you will get there quicker.' The man thought the boy was being silly, ⁵ .. 'I'll get there before you!' he said. The man and his donkey went very quickly along the road. They went so fast that the apples started to fall out of the bags. The man, ⁶ .., stopped for a rest. Suddenly he saw the bags, ⁷ .. 'Where are all the apples?' he cried.

Scrabble – the international game

Scrabble is a game where you need to build words from letters. It's not difficult to understand the basic rules of Scrabble but players need to be very skilful if they want to score a lot of points and outplay each other.

P₃ R₁ E₁ D₂ E₁ A₁ B₃ L₁ E₁ L₁ E₁ S₁ S₁

Look for 'affixes', groups of letters which go before (prefixes) or after words (suffixes) and make them bigger.

For example, prefixes like mis, sub, over and un are very useful because you can make words like mishear, substandard, overeat and uninteresting.

M₃ I₁ S₁ H₄ E₁ A₁ R₁
S₁ U₁ B₃ S₁ T₁ A₁ N₁ D₂ A₁ R₁ D₂

Suffixes like ize / ise, ent and ive are also great.

D₂ I₁ F₄ F₄ E₁ R₁ E₁ N₁ T₁

M₃ O₁ D₂ E₁ R₁ N₁ I₁ Z₁₀ E₁

I₁ M₃ A₁ G₂ I₁ N₁ A₁ T₁ I₁ V₁ E₁

Remember that you can also put affixes together in one word.

U₁ N₁ S₁ O₁ C₃ I₁ A₁ B₃ L₃ E₁
O₁ V₄ E₁ R₁ C₃ O₁ M₃ P₃ L₃ I₁ C₃ A₁ T₁ E₁

Scrabble is an international game with versions in many languages. There are professional games and contests, but most people play for fun. Scrabble can also be very helpful for building your vocabulary. Look at the website www.scrabble.com to discover more about this great game.

- 1 In the word unhappy, is un a prefix or a suffix?
- 2 Do suffixes come at the start or end of words?

Answers: 1 A prefix 2 At the end

Word formation 1: verbs and adjectives (affixes)

Prefixes

1 Prefixes change the meaning of a word.

I played John, but lost.
I outplayed John, and won.

2 These prefixes change verbs and / or adjectives:

prefix	meaning	examples
co-	together	coexist, cooperate
de-	change, reverse	deform, deforest dis-, in- (il- / im- / ir-), un-	not	inactive, impossible, unhappy
inter-	between	interview, international
mis-	wrongly, badly	mistake, misunderstand
out-	do something better than	outdo, outplay over-	more, too much	overeat, over-excited
post-	after	postgraduate, post-war pre-, ante-	before	preview, anterior
pro-	for, in favour of	pro-democracy, pro-freedom re-	again	rebuild, resell
semi-	half, partly	semicircular, semiconscious
tele-	from far away	telephone, telework
trans-	across	transport, transatlantic
under-, sub-	less, not enough	underestimate, substandard

Instead of in-, use im- before m and p, il- before l, and ir- before r.

in- + mature → immature in- + legal → illegal in- + responsible → irresponsible

TIP The prefix en- changes nouns and adjectives into verbs.
endanger, enlarge

3 Most prefixes don't have hyphens (-). Add a hyphen only if it is needed to show a change of meaning, or make the meaning clearer.

remark = to say something re-mark = to mark again

TIP New words created with prefixes in English usually have a hyphen until they become very common. For example, today email is spelled without a hyphen.

Some words can be spelled both with and without a hyphen.

cooperative /kəʊ,ɒp.ə.ˈrɪ.ə.tɪv/
► adjective (UK ALSO co-operative) willing to help or do what people ask: I've asked them not to play their music so loudly, but they're not being very cooperative.

Suffixes

4 Suffixes usually change the type of word as well as its meaning; heart is a noun but heartless is an adjective; hard is an adjective but harden is a verb.

A skilful player has a lot of skill.
If you lengthen a word, you increase its length.

5 These suffixes change verbs or nouns into adjectives:

suffix	meaning	examples
-able	can be done	doable, workable
-al	related to	accidental, critical
-ant, -ent	related to	important, dependent
-en	made of	golden, wooden
-ful	full of, related to	harmful, useful
-ic	related to	heroic, poetic
-ish	like / people or language of	greenish, Spanish
-ive	related to	creative, effective
-less	without	homeless, speechless
-like	like	businesslike, childlike
-ous	related to	famous, nervous
-y	like / having	funny, windy

6 These suffixes change nouns or adjectives into verbs.

suffix	examples
-ate	create, demonstrate
-en	deafen, strengthen
-ify	horrify, simplify
-ise / -ize	modernise, revolutionize

TIP Many verbs can be spelled with both -ise and -ize, but -ize is more common today, especially in American English.

a computerised / computerized system
Some verbs are only spelled with -ise, even in American English, e.g. advertise, revise.

Word formation 2: nouns (affixes)

You need imagination, self-confidence ...

Are you thinking of starting your own business when you leave school? Here are five things you need to be successful.

1. Imagination

Think of a good idea, then do some research to see if it will work.

2. Self-confidence

Every business is a risk but you need to believe in yourself. Always remember that if you don't do it, someone else will. Have some optimism!

3. Cooperation

You can't do everything. Make contacts and get help. Relationships are very important in business.

4. Good time management

Time is money. Don't waste time going to different places yourself. Using email or the telephone will save your time, and legs!

5. Professionalism

Be the best at whatever you do. You may not make mega-money but you will definitely get a lot of enjoyment and self-satisfaction. So, start thinking and planning now. Your business might not be the next Microsoft, but perhaps it could be a mini-Microsoft!

Are these good (G) or bad (B) ideas according to the text?

- 1 Making sure you do everything yourself.
- 2 Travelling a lot.
- 3 Taking risks.

Word formation 2: nouns (affixes)

Prefixes

- 1 Prefixes add to or change the meaning of the original word to make new nouns.

A plant grows outside.

A transplant is a medical operation.

- 2 The following prefixes can be used with nouns the same way they are used with verbs and adjectives.

prefix	meaning	examples
co-	together	cooperation, co-star dis-, in-, un-	not	disease, inaction, unhappiness re-	again, back	reconstruction, return
tele-	from far away	telephone, television
trans-	across	transaction, transplant
under-, sub-	below, too little	underwear, subway

▶ See Unit 42 for prefixes used with verbs and adjectives.

- 3 The following prefixes usually come with nouns only.

prefix	meaning	examples
auto-	self	autobiography, autograph
cyber-	computer	cyberspace, cyberwar
non-	not	nonsense, non-smoker e-	electronic, Internet	email, e-sales
ex-	former	ex-footballer, ex-husband,
mega-	very big	megabyte, mega-star micro-	very small	microchip, microscope mini-	small	minicab, mini-Olympics
mono-	one	monopoly, monorail
self-	personal	self-confidence, self-study
semi-	half	semi-professional, semicolon

Suffixes

- 4 Suffixes add to or change the meaning of the original word to make new nouns.

A relation is someone in your family.

A relationship is connections between people.

- 5 These suffixes make a new noun from the original word.

suffix	meaning	examples
-ant, -ent	a person who acts or works as	assistant, student
-ar, -er, -or	a person who works as	manager, auditor
-ess	female	lioness, waitress
-ful	quantity	bagful, handful
-hood	relations	brotherhood, childhood
-ism	belief, practice	Darwinism, racism
-ist	person with a belief or skill	biologist, pianist
-ology	study of	geology, psychology
-phobia	fear of	claustrophobia

- 6 These suffixes are added to verbs and adjectives to make nouns.

suffix	examples
-age	baggage, breakage
-al	arrival, refusal
-ance, -ancy, -ence, -ency	brilliance, residency
-ation, -ition, -sion	imagination, competition
{e}ry	bakery, entry
-ity	rarity, similarity
-ment	disappointment, enjoyment
-ness	sadness, weakness
-ship	hardship, relationship

- 7 Another way of making nouns is compounding: adding words to each other. Compound nouns can be written with or without a hyphen, or as a single word.

business suit,	noun + noun
tablecloth
mother-in-law	noun + preposition + noun
go-ahead	verb + adverb

Do you often feel worried or unwell?
 Are you unusually quiet, angry or sad?
 Do you find it difficult to sleep or eat?
 If you answered yes to any of these questions, you could be showing signs of stress.

What is stress?

Stress is the body's way of preparing us for an emergency situation, such as a car accident. It is important that the body reacts quickly. There are a number of physical reactions; for example, the heart beats faster and the body produces more glucose for energy. There's no doubt this is a good thing in an emergency situation. But situations such as difficulties at home can also produce stress. Over a long period of time, it can make a person tired and weaken the body.

What can I do about it?

- It's very easy to do too much. Try giving up one activity per week.
- Don't stay up late doing homework. It's not worth it. You'll feel more tired and find it harder to learn new information.
- Be positive. There are some things you can't do anything about. There's no point worrying because it's rainy or you don't like it when exams start.
- Know when it's time to stop. Make sure there's enough time for having fun!

- 1 What can long-term stress do to the body?
- 2 What should you make time for?

Answers: 1 Make it tired and weak. 2 Having fun.

It and there

It

- 1 Use it + be to identify or describe something which has already been mentioned or which is already known to exist.

What's that noise? It's my phone ringing.
What colour's your car? It's blue.

- 2 Use it + be for facts or situations which have already been mentioned or which are already known about.

The heart beats faster and the body produces more glucose. It's the body's way of preparing us for an emergency situation.

- 3 We can sometimes use it to refer to a person.

Who's that over there? It's Mrs Evans.
NOT ~~She's Mrs Evans.~~

And on the phone: Hello! It's Lara. NOT ~~I'm Lara.~~

- 4 Use it + be to describe days, dates, distances, temperatures, times, weather and the current situation.

It's rainy.
It's five miles away.
It's Friday already.

TIP

We can also use this / that instead of it to refer back to a fact or situation. This / that give more emphasis.

Long-term situations, such as difficulties at home, can also produce stress.
It / This can leave a person feeling tired.

- 5 We can use it when the subject of a sentence is a to-infinitive.

It's very easy to do too much.
NOT usually ~~To do too much is very easy.~~

TIP

In informal language, we can sometimes use the verb + -ing instead of the to-infinitive.

It was great seeing you. (= It was great to see you.)

- 6 We can use it when the subject of a sentence is a clause.

It was a shame that she gave up.
NOT usually ~~That she gave up was a shame.~~

- 7 Use it as a subject in certain expressions.

It doesn't matter. / It doesn't matter if ...
It's no use. / It's no use + -ing ...
It's no good. / It's no good + -ing ...
It's (not) worth it. / It's (not) worth + -ing ...
It seems (+ adjective) that ...
It looks as if ...
It's time (for + object) to ...

- 8 We can use a past tense verb or to-infinitive after It's time. Both refer to the present.

It's time I stopped. / It's time to stop.

- 9 Use it with take + to-infinitive to talk about time that is needed.

It takes (him) an hour to get ready.

- 10 Use it as an object in certain expressions.

couldn't believe it when ...
like / love / hate it when ...
find it difficult / hard / impossible / easy to ... make it clear that ...

There

- 11 Use there is / there are to show that something is present or exists.

Make sure there's enough time for having fun.
There are some things you can't do anything about.

TIP

When we are speaking, we often use there's with plural subjects.

There's a lot of things I want to tell you.

- 12 Use there's with pronouns such as nothing and someone.

There's nothing to worry about.

- 13 Use there in the following expressions:

There's no point / use (in) ...
There's no need for (+ noun) / There's no need to ...
There's no doubt (that) ... / There's no doubt about (+ noun)
There's no danger / sign of (+ noun)
There's no guarantee / way (that) ...

Reporting with it and there

- 14 It and there are common in reports with the passive of the verbs believe, expect, feel, report, say, think, understand.

It is thought that 70% of visits to doctors are due to stress.

There were thought to be 20,000 people there.

- See Unit 34 for more information on reporting using the passive of the verb.

Linking words 1: addition, contrast and time

Once you have read one ...

There are many reasons to read detective stories. First of all, you know that lots of things will happen and the story will move quickly, especially as the detective is usually in danger. Then there's the fun of being a detective at the same time as the characters. And finally, there is the satisfaction of a solved crime.

If you're new to detective stories, try the Alex Rider series by Anthony Horowitz.

Though only 14, Alex Rider is no ordinary teenager. After his uncle is mysteriously killed, Alex is thrown into the world of spies. While most kids worry about spots and homework, Alex is just trying to stay alive!

There are six books in the series. Once you have read one, you'll want to read the others. The characters are easy to believe in, the stories are original and, above all, the situations Alex gets into are really cool!

Gavin Martin (aged 15)

- 1 What does the writer think is fun about detective stories?
- 2 When does Alex Rider become a spy?

Answers: 1 Being a detective at the same time as the characters. 2 After his uncle is mysteriously killed.

Linking words 1: addition, contrast and time

Addition

- 1 Use and, too, as well and also to connect words, phrases or sentences.

You know that lots of things will happen and the story will move quickly.

- 2 Too and as well are usually used at the end of a sentence. Also can come in the middle.

She writes great stories. She draws the pictures too. / She also draws the pictures.

- 3 Use in addition, besides, furthermore, moreover or what's more to introduce a sentence with more information. What's more is informal.
He was cold and hungry. What's more, he didn't know the way home.
- 4 Use the phrase above all to suggest that something is more important than other things you have mentioned.
Above all, the situations Alex gets into are really cool!
- 5 Use equally, likewise and similarly at the beginning of a sentence to introduce information which is similar in some way.
There are a lot of Sherlock Holmes stories. Similarly, there are many films.

Contrast

- 6 We can use but, (and) yet, however and nevertheless to contrast information.
The government knew of the problems, yet they didn't publish the report until now.
- 7 We can also use although, though, in spite of + noun or despite + noun to contrast ideas.
Although he is only 14, / Despite his young age, Alex Rider is no ordinary teenager.

TIP Use though in informal language at the beginning of a sentence to mean 'although' or at the end to mean 'however'.
Though only 14, Alex Rider is no ordinary teenager.
We had a great time at the beach. It was very windy, though.

TIP We can't use in spite of to join sentences. Instead we use the phrase in spite of the fact that.
I was really happy in spite of the fact that I hadn't won. NOT ... in spite of that I hadn't won.

- 8 Use on the one hand ... on the other hand, while, whereas and in / by contrast to compare contrasting ideas.
The footballer dislikes being seen in public. His wife, in contrast, clearly loves it!

We can use on the other hand without on the one hand.
Todd wasn't sure if Terry was telling the truth. I, on the other hand, had no doubts at all.

- 9 Use on the contrary when you add information to support a negative statement.
The government has not managed to improve standards in schools. On the contrary, more students are failing their exams.

We also use it to contradict a suggestion made by another person.

A: You probably know this already.

B: On the contrary, I had no idea!

Time

- 10 Use as, when or while to talk about two things happening at the same time.
He was still working when I went to bed.
While most kids worry about spots and homework, Alex is just trying to stay alive.
- 11 Use after, before, when, as soon as and once to talk about two things that happen one after the other.
I phoned him when / after I got home. (= I got home. Then I phoned him.)
- 12 Use since to talk about when something began and for to talk about how long it went on.
I've lived here since last year / I got married / for a year.
- See Units 5 and 26 for the use of since and for.
- 13 We use until to talk about the time when something stops happening and something else starts.
He didn't know anything about all this until his uncle died / until last year.
- Use by the time to mean at the time when or before something else happens.
I'll be rich by the time I'm 30.
- 14 Use the following adverbs or adverbial phrases to describe the order of events or the sequence of points in an argument: first(ly), second(ly) (etc.), first of all, next / then, afterwards / after that, before, finally / eventually / lastly, later.
First of all, you know that lots of things will happen.
Then there is the satisfaction of a solved crime.
- Use before and afterwards (not after) as adverbs.
I finish college next summer. Afterwards (NOT After), I'm going travelling for a year.
- 15 Use meanwhile to talk about what happens between two events or at the same time as another event.
The parents went out. Meanwhile, at home, the children ...

Linking words 2: reason, purpose and result

Why? Because the roads were bad.

John McAdam (1756–1836) is famous for improving roads. Road transport became very important in the early 1800s because England was a busy industrial centre, so people and goods were moving all over the country. However, in order to move things quickly, they needed better roads.

Therefore, McAdam tried out a new type of road. The new roads were built with a lot of small stones so that they were stronger. There was also a small rise, called a 'camber', in the middle of the road, in order that rain could run off the road. McAdam made the first of his roads in 1816. As these roads were very successful, he built them in America in the 1830s.

At the end of the 19th century, cars came onto the roads. Cars are heavy, so roads needed to be stronger. The basic McAdam roads were covered with a thick black material called tar so that they would hold cars. The new surface was called 'tarmac'.

True or False?

- 1 There were no roads in England before 1816.
- 2 Tarmac made roads stronger.

Answers: 1 False 2 True

Linking words 2: reason, purpose and result

Reason

- 1 Use because, since and as to give a reason. Because is the most common and the most informal.

The roads were bad because they were very old.
He knew a lot about roads since he was an engineer.
As these roads were very successful, he built more.

TIP

As can also mean 'in the same way as'.

The workers made the road as McAdam told them to.

- 2 The part of the sentence with the reason usually comes last but it can come first.

I went by car because it was quicker.
Since it was quicker, I went by car.

- 3 Only because can come by itself in short answers.

A: Why did you go by car? B: Because it was quicker.
NOT Since...

TIP

Some prepositions also give a reason, e.g. because of, due to, owing to, on account of. Because of is the most common and informal.

Roads were better because of McAdam.

- 4 For meaning because is very formal and old-fashioned. For never comes first in the sentence.

Engineering is a difficult subject, for it is necessary to study very hard.

- 5 Seeing that and now (that) are informal.

Seeing that it's Monday, you should be at school.
Now he has a car, he's happy.

- 6 Use in case + present tense for reasons for things that might happen in the future.

I'll stay at home in case Jack phones.
Carry it carefully in case it breaks.

TIP

Use in case only if you are describing a future possible reason for doing something, not for a future possible situation.

Take a sandwich in case you get hungry.
I'll stay at home if it rains. NOT ... in case it rains.

► See Units 35, 36 and 37 for more information on if.

Purpose

- 7 In order to / that and so that show purpose. We often use modal verbs after in order that and so that.

In order to move things quickly, they needed better roads.

The roads were rebuilt so that they would be stronger.

- 8 For + -ing shows purpose.

Tar is for making roads stronger.

To-infinitives also show purpose.

He drove faster to get there on time.

Result

- 9 So (that) also shows a result. If it comes in the middle of a sentence, there is a comma before it.

So McAdam became rich and famous.

It was snowing heavily, so there was no way we could get there.

- 10 The adverbs therefore, thus, accordingly, hence and consequently are formal ways of showing a cause, reason and result. These words usually go at the beginning of a sentence and are separated by a comma.

Therefore, McAdam tried out a new type of road.

There were more cars. Consequently, roads became worse.

Practice

A Underline the correct option.

- 1 I'm wet because / so that it's raining.

Route 66 is a famous road which once went 3,940 km from the east to the west of the USA. It was built in 1926
 1 because there was no road transport across the country. Many poor farmers travelled along Route 66 in the 1930s
 2 to move to California. They went
 3 they could find work there.

The road was very useful
 4 people driving on business. Therefore, many shops, restaurants and hotels opened along Route 66
 5 drivers could take a break on their journeys. The first McDonald's restaurant opened on Route 66.

A new, bigger road was built next to Route 66 and 6 the famous road became, sadly, less important. In 1985, Route 66 was taken off the road map it was no longer an official state road. The road was broken up, 8 it became a system of smaller roads.
 7

 9 it is no longer possible to drive along Route 66 today. However, there is a Route 66 museum and even a Route 66 fan club 10 the road is still very famous.

A long time before J R R Tolkien's ¹(die) death in 1973, his books, ²(special) The Lord of the Rings, had become very ³(fashion) in many countries round the world. Since the 1970s, their ⁴(popular) has continued to grow. Tolkien himself was a very quiet man who was ⁵(comfort) with all the attention directed at him. He didn't write his books in order to become ⁶(fame). In fact, he wrote his first book, The Hobbit, to read to his children. His books are actually full of things he was interested in, like ⁷(tradition) ways of life, religion, old stories and languages. His deep love and ⁸(know) of languages, particularly ancient ones like Old English, Old Icelandic and Old German, helped him to invent new but ⁹(believe) languages for the characters in his books. Not everyone likes Tolkien's work, and when The Lord of the Rings was first published, it received quite a lot of ¹⁰(criticise). Far more people, however, expressed admiration for Tolkien's incredible ¹¹(imagine) and ¹²(skill) storytelling, and they still do.

E I was in the shop 'Hats and Things' at lunchtime.

There was a tall woman in the shop.

She was trying on hats. She picked up a blue one and put ^{it} on. I remember thinking it looked good on her. I had tried on some gloves and was just taking ^{them} off. The woman came over, picked up some gloves and put ^{them} on too. Then she started looking at some bags. She dropped one on the floor by my feet. I bent down to pick ^{it} up and when I turned round she was just going out. And she was still wearing the clothes! I ran out to stop her taking ^{them} away, but then I felt someone's hand on my shoulder. It was the shop owner. I was still holding the bag! And he started telling ^{me} off while the woman got away!

The story is about a young maths student, George Dantzig, who studied at the University of California, Berkeley, in the USA. One day Dantzig arrived late for a class and copied down two maths problems from the board, which he thought were for homework. The problems, both of which Dantzig found difficult, took him longer than usual to solve. A few weeks later, when Dantzig had forgotten all about the homework, he was woken early by someone at the front door. He opened the door to find his teacher, who was very excited, with the homework in his hand. Dantzig, whose father was a mathematician, believed this was an example of positive thinking.
